masticating the food since they were not made for the sake of this but it was the result of accident And in like manner as to other parts in which there appears to exist an adaptation to an end Wheresoever therefore all things together that is all the parts of one whole happened like as if they were made for the sake of something these were preserved having been appropriately constituted by an internal spontaneity and whatsoever things were not thus constituted perished and still perish We here see the principle of natural selection shadowed forth but how little Aristotle fully comprehended the principle is shown by his remarks on the formation of the teeth the first author who in modern times has treated it in a scientific spirit was Buffon But as his opinions fluctuated greatly at different periods and as he does not enter on the causes or means of the transformation of species I need not here enter on details
