Photography's Materialities Geoff Bender, Rasmus R. Simonsen, 2021-05-17 There is little dispute that photography is a material practice and that the photograph itself is ineluctably material And yet matter material and materiality have proven to be remarkably elusive terms of inquiry frequently producing studies that are disparate in scope sharing seemingly little common ground Although the wide methodological range of materialist study can be dizzying it is this book s contention that that multiplicity is also the field s greatest asset keeping materialist inquiry enduringly vibrant provided that varying methods are in close enough proximity to converse Photography s Materialities orchestrates one such conversation Juxtaposing the insights of theorists like Lacan Benjamin and Latour beside close studies of crime spirit and composite photography among others this collection aims for a productive synergy one capacious enough to span transatlantic spaces over the long nineteenth century Contributors Kris Belden Adams University of Mississippi Maura Coughlin Bryant University David LaRocca independent scholar Jacob W Lewis University of Rochester Mary Marchand Goucher College Zachary Tavlin Art Institute of Chicago Christa Holm Vogelius University of Copenhagen

Creating Effective Computer Generated Scene Lighting Using Traditional Film Lighting Techniques Julie Marie Garcia, 2006 This thesis explores the process of translating traditional cinematic lighting into the digital realm by understanding distinctly different lighting styles of three Directors of Photography These Directors of Photography are Conrad Hall Gregg Toland and Zhao Fei Digital lighting studies representative of the work of each Director of Photography were created In these studies the lighting in scenes done by each Director of Photography was digitally mimicked As a result the lighting studies provided valuable insight into the approaches of these masters of light An animation was created to display a scene lit in the three lighting styles of each Director of Photography The process learned from the lighting studies of creating three different lighting styles representative of each Director of

Photography was applied to the final animation The analysis and lighting studies of each Directors of Photography style expedited the process of lighting the final animation in each different style As a result a more complex environment was effectively lit in three different cinematic styles with animated light Conference Abstracts and Applications ,2000
