David Ross, 2007-03-01 FOUNDATIONS OF ETHICS THE GIFFORD LECTURES delivered in the University of Aberdeen 1935 6 by SIR W DAVID ROSS Provost of Oriel College Oxford President of the British Academy OXFORD AT THE CLARENDON PRESS Oxford University Press Amen House London B C 4 GLASGOW NEW YORK TORONTO MELBOURNE WELLINGTON BOMBAY CALCUTTA MADRAS CAPE TOWN Geoffrey Cumberlege Publisher to the University FIRST EDITION 1 939 Reprinted lithographically in Great Britain at the UNIVERSITY PRESS OXFORD 1 949 1951 from sheets of the first edition PREFACE THIS book represents the result of further reflections on moral theory since I published in 1930 a book called The Right and the Good I have tried in the present book to take account of such books and articles later than 1930 as have come my way and as seem to have a close relation whether in the way of agreement or in the way of criticism to the views expressed in the earlier book The result of further reflection has been to confirm me in most of the views I earlier expressed but by no means in all Some of the topics considered have already been much discussed by other writers the issues have been much clarified in the course of the discussion and in such cases I feel comparatively confident that the views I have argued for are true or near the truth Other topics especially some discussed in Chapter XI have not been much discussed before there have been few sign posts saying This way to the truth Proceed at your own risk or No road this way and in these cases I put forward my conclusions very tentatively in the hope that discussion of them may tend to clear up the issues I must express my deep gratitude to the University of Aberdeen for the honour of being invited to deliver the Gifford Lectures and the hope that the interval between delivery and publication will not be thought too long

W D R CONTENTS

L INTRODUCTORY Our method will be the critical study of the moral consciousness and of the main moral theories

2 Two main ways of regarding the moral life as obedience to laws or as a striving after goods Our main task is therefore the study of the nature of and the relations between tightness and goodness

3 The main attempts at definitions of ethical terms may be classified as definitions by reference to a mental attitude reaction theories or by reference to results causal theories

5 They may also be classified as naturalistic or non naturalistic

6 It is not always clear at first sight to what type a well known theory e g Hedonism belongs

8 II NATURALISTIC DEFINITIONS OF RIGHT

1 Evolutionary theories have no plausibility as definitions of right

12 nor as accounts of the ground of rightness

13 It is sometimes thought that they have successfully explained rightness away

14 The inquiry into the origin of moral ideas may be thought to have undermined their validity but this cannot be made out

15 K The discovery of differences between moral codes may be thought to have undermined them all but such differences usually imply differences not on fundamental moral questions but on matters of fact which form the minor premisses of our ethical thinking

17 and in any case difference of opinion cannot prove that no opinion is true

19 2 Reaction theories classification of them

21 a Private reactions theory objections to it

22 K Public reaction theory objections

24 c The view that defines rightness by reference to the reaction of the agent objections

25 3 Causal theories Hedonism is unplausible as an account of the meaning of right

26 The various attempts at defining right would be more plausible if recast as attempts a to state the ground of rightness as such they will be examined in chs 4 5

Morals a Treatise on the Psycho-Sociological Bases of Ethics Professor G. L. Duprat,2015-06-26 Excerpt from Morals a Treatise on the Psycho Sociological Bases of Ethics The field of psychological research has widened by the triple alliance of psychology physiology and sociology an alliance at once of the most intimate and fundamental nature and productive of far reaching results It need therefore occasion no surprise that among the volumes of a scientific series is to be found a treatise dealing with ethical questions No doubt it is true that ethics and metaphysics have up to the present been closely interwoven Under the guise of ethical theory philosophical speculations of the most audacious type are presented to the student But recent works on ethics have not been numerous and betray signs of lassitude in those metaphysicians who paraphrase in general terms the works of Kant and seem more anxious to soar into the realms of lofty thought than to lay the foundations of work that will be both positive and lasting It would seem that the time has come for a system of ethics less ambitious in its aims more restricted in its scope and based on a more rigorous method of treatment About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

The Rational Foundations of Ethics Timothy L. S. Sprigge,1990-01-01 Reconciling Our Aims Allan Gibbard,2008-09-12 In these three Tanner lectures distinguished ethical theorist Allan Gibbard explores the nature of normative thought and the bases of ethics In the first lecture he explores the role of intuitions in moral thinking and offers a way of thinking about the intuitive method of moral inquiry that both places this activity within the natural world and makes sense of it as an indispensable part of our lives as planners In the second and third lectures he takes up the kind of substantive ethical inquiry he has described in the first lecture asking how we might live together on terms that none of us could reasonably reject Since working at cross purposes loses fruits that might stem from cooperation he argues any consistent ethos that meets this test would be in a crucial way utilitarian It would reconcile our individual aims to establish in
