Kamerman,1998 With this collection of essays Jack Kamerman presents the first sustained examination of one of the underpinnings of the operation of the criminal justice system the issue of responsibility for actions and as a consequence the issue of accountability Unique in the breadth of its approach this volume examines the issue of responsibility from the perspectives of criminal justice professionals sociologists philosophers and public administrators from four countries Attacking the problem on various levels the essayists look first at the assumptions made by criminal justice institutions regarding offender responsibility then turn to the views of offenders on the causes of their own actions and to the consequences of offenders either accepting or denying responsibility These scholars also examine the social and psychological circumstances under which people in general accept or deny responsibility for what they do thus providing the basis for understanding the process of social distance as a major precondition for people to commit atrocities without seeing themselves as responsible Understanding the circumstances under which people either distance themselves from or embrace responsibility enables criminologists to make grounded recommendations for reordering responsibility in the criminal justice system and more generally for restoring a sense of responsibility to organizations occupations and society The substantive vehicle for this analysis of accountability and responsibility is the relationship between criminal justice institutions and the offenders who are under institutional control
