Alcohol Gender And Culture:

Alcohol, Gender and Culture Dimitra Gefou-Madianou,2002-01-04 Europeans constitute 12 and a half per cent of the world's population but consume 50 per cent of the recorded world production alcohol and this consumption plays a significant role in the cultural religious and social identities of these countries. The contributors show how different groups define the proper use of alcohol how State policies may effect drinking behaviour and highlight how beverages and comestibles must be seen in relation to each other. From this is it shown how important socio cultural distinctions are made between and within communities gender relations ethnic groups and socio economic groups and within religious ideologies what one drinks how one drinks with whom and where all influence not how alcoholic substances are regarded but how social relations are experienced. Alcohol Gender and Culture clearly demonstrates how the social construction of drinking may provide an analytical tool with which to approach different socio cultural groups and illustrates how any cultural group can be compared to another by its attitudes to alcohol. It will be invaluable reading for students and lecturers of anthropology cultural history and gender studies.

Alcohol, Gender, Culture, and Harms in the Americas Pan American Health Organization,2007 Alcohol is a major risk factor for mortality and morbidity in the Americas. Overall in the Americas alcohol consumption levels are higher than the global average while abstention rates for both men and women are consistently lower. In terms of the burden of disease alcohol caused approximately 323 000 deaths 6.5 million years of life lost and 14.6 million disability adjusted life years in the region of the Americas encompassing both acute and chronic disease outcomes from newborns to the elderly in the year 2002. Men have higher levels of all alcohol attributable burdens of disease compared to women which can be attributed mainly to their alcohol consumption profile both in terms of higher total volume and more harmful patterns of drinking including heavy episodic drinking. p 7

McDonald,2020-08-18 Why do so many people feel compelled to drink alcohol or take drugs And why do so many men drink and so many women refrain Using ideas from social anthropology this book attempts to provide a novel answer to these questions The introduction surveys both gender and addiction It points out that we cannot say what men or women are really like in any culturally innocent sense for gender is always even in the realm of biology a cultural matter The ethnographic chapters ranging from Ancient Rome to modern Japan similarly suggest how any substance from alcohol to tea to heroin inevitably takes its meaning or reality in the cultural system in which it exists This book will be of interest to medical anthropologists medical sociologists anyone with an interest in the contemporary direction of anthropology as well as those working in the fields of alcohol and addiction Alcohol Policies in EU Member States and Norway Esa Österberg,2002 Colección de informes sobre las políticas relacionadas con el alcohol en diversos países europeos impuestos restricciones al consumo según la edad y durante determinadas actividades regulación de la publicidad de bebidas alcohólicas etc

Watts, 2005 This book details an exploratory research study that was conducted to examine the associations between acculturation stress alcohol consumption and other variables in a sample of 100 Puerto Rican alcohol users residing in the state of Massachusetts The study relied on a cross sectional survey and a non probability sample The data collected included acculturation scores acculturation stress scores data on the use of alcohol and other drugs and demographic information Comparisons were made among sample subjects based on gender place of birth acculturation levels and educational levels No statistically significant differences were found among subjects in the low partial and high acculturation categories in terms of their levels of acculturative stress or their frequency and amount of alcohol consumption Significant associations were found however between stress and alcohol and illegal drug use Findings suggest that the associations between alcohol drug use and stress were significantly stronger among female and United States born subjects Study findings also suggest differences between Puerto Rican and other Latino alcohol users in the United States hypotheses For this reason after exploring the associations between a number of variables the book concludes by providing research ideas and by recommending 12 hypotheses to be tested in future research A highly relevant and valuable contribution to the understanding of alcohol abuse among Puerto Ricans in the United States Every effort must be made to ensure that the findings of studies like this are properly disseminated
