Social Class and Transnational Human Capital Jürgen Gerhards, Hans Silke, Sören Carlson, 2017-06-26 Due to globalization processes foreign language skills knowledge about other countries and intercultural competences have increasingly become important for societies and people s social positions Previous research on social inequality however has dominantly focused on the reproduction of class structures within the boundaries of a particular nation state without considering the importance of these specific skills and competences Within Social Class and Transnational Human Capital authors Gerhards Hans and Carlson refer to these skills as transnational human capital and ask to what extent access to this increasingly sought after resource depends on social class Based on Pierre Bourdieu s theory of class they investigate this question via both quantitative and qualitative empirical analyses In doing so the authors focus among other examples on the so called school year abroad i e students spending up to a year abroad while attending school a practice which is rather popular in Germany but also quite common in many other countries Thus this insightful volume explores how inequalities in the acquisition of transnational human capital and new forms of social distinction are produced within families depending on their class position and the educational strategies parents pursue when trying to prepare their children for a globalizing world An enlightening title this book will appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as postdoctoral researchers conditions on ERP patterns were investigated Results indicated that some of the differences in ERP effects between the monolingual and bilingual children noted in the third study may have been due to processing demands created by the mixed language testing condition in which the bilingual children were tested The results of these four studies support experience based accounts of early language acquisition and further establish the use of combined behavioral neural imaging approaches for studying language development in bilingual toddlers
