Developmental Processes in Higher Vertebrates Ruth Bellairs,1971-01-01 Developmental Processes in Higher Vertebrates Ruth Bellairs,1971 New Principles in Developmental Processes Hisato Kondoh,Atsushi Kuroiwa,2014-07-08

During the last decade modern technologies have made a revolutionary change in developmental biology The molecular and cellular processes in live embryos can now be visualized thanks to technologies using fluorescent proteins The whole genome information of a wide range of animal species has now become available confirming the common principles that operate in every species These and other advances in our understanding of the developmental processes during embryogenesis and tissue regeneration have put forward new principles Those new principles will also be important in the stem cell biology branched from developmental biology in order to generate a particular tissue by manipulating stem cells This book is planned to introduce these new principles to readers who are working in developmental biology and or stem cell biology fields with an emphasis on genetic and cellular processes The ESC Textbook of Cardiovascular Development José M. Pérez-Pomares,Robert Kelly,2018-07-12 This highly illustrated textbook has been prepared by the Working Group on Development Anatomy and Pathology of the European Society of Cardiology ESC The ESC Textbook of Cardiovascular Development is the authority on cardiovascular development from a perspective of both basic scientists and clinicians The embryonic origin of congenital heart diseases and their pathology has been analysed in depth Modern concepts pivotal to the understanding of cardiovascular morphogenesis including those still subject to controversy have been highlighted and the content covers the ESC Core Curriculum The textbook will appeal to researchers and clinicians from a wide spectrum of disciplines including molecular and developmental biologists working on mechanisms of heart development in a range of model organisms as well as pathologists morphologists geneticists and cardiologists Craniofacial Development The Tissue and Molecular Interactions That Control Development of the Head Philippa H. Francis-West,Lesley Robson,Darrell J.R. Evans,2012-12-06 Craniofacial development is a multistep and intricate process initially involving a number of inductive interactions that control neural and neural crest development which are followed by a series of epithelial mesenchymal interactions that control outgrowth patterning and skeletal differentiation Certain aspects of craniofacial development are unique developmental processes in higher vertebrates First in higher vertebrates the cranial neural crest in contrast to the trunk neural crest gives rise to the skeletal structures These skeletal elements include those comprising mem brane bone and secondary cartilage which with the exception of the clavicle are tissue types found exclusively in the head in higher vertebrates Second with the exception of the tongue the origin of the musculature is distinct from other regions of the body The body and tongue muscles are formed from the segmented epithelial somites whilst the head musculature is formed from unsegmented paraxial and prechordal mesoderm Furthermore the signalling cascades that control myogenic differentiation appear to be distinct as determined by gene expression and the response of myogenic cells to growth factors Finally the neurogenic placodes which give rise to the sensory organs and some cranial ganglia are only found in the head Over recent years there have been significant advances in our knowledge of the molecular processes that control craniofacial development in a number of animal models This has given insight into the genes that control many aspects of head development from the initial induction of the head to the final stages of differentiation Development Processes in Higher Vertebrates ,1971 On Certain Problems of Vertebrate Embryology John Beard,1896 The Ancestry of Vertebrates as a Means of Understanding the Principal Features of Their Structure and Development H.
