Abstract. The level of food security of the country should characterize, on the one hand, the degree of satisfaction of the population's need for high-quality food products, and, on the other hand, the reliability of food supply throughout its territory. Agricultural producers located in the region play a huge role in ensuring the food security of the region. Food security occupies a special place in the economic stability of the development of regions, it can be safely stated that it is food security that occupies a dominant position among other categories of economic security. The article analyses the main economic indicators of one of the representatives of the agricultural industry, assesses the effectiveness of this enterprise. One of the priority tasks of the management of the economy in the near future is to increase the volume of products and its range, which fully contributes to ensuring the food security of the region.

1 Introduction

Agricultural producers located in the region play a huge role in ensuring the food security of the region.

Within the framework of this topic, we will analyze the main economic indicators of one of the representatives of the industry, and evaluate the effectiveness of this enterprise.

The organization under study operates on the territory of the Southern Federal District, is the budget-forming enterprise of the resort city of Anapa and is one of the few enterprises that not only survived during the years of market reforms, but, moreover, got stronger. Today the main activities of the organization are:

- cultivation of cereals and leguminous crops;
- growing potatoes, table root crops and tuber crops with a high content of starch or inulin;
- cultivation of other fruits and nuts;
- other types of activities not prohibited by the current legislation of the Russian Federation.

Due to the consistently high quality of products, the company has established itself as a reliable partner not only in the region, but also far beyond its borders.
