Diamond Days Life In Minor League Baseball:

Diamond Days Jeff Klein, 2004-03-01 Much of what occurs in major league baseball is well documented. Away from the bright lights and multilevel palaces of the big leagues are many more people involved in the game at other levels. Players from rookies to veterans struggle to work their way to the major leagues. These journeys are repeated annually across the globe. Many of the stories here came first hand from the people who lived them through interviews with the author. Imagine playing in Japan for the first time only to discover that your interpreter is still trying to learn English. Or being traded for a bucket of fish. Or having your team bus break down in the mountain wilderness where the closest sign of civilization is a dilapidated country store with heads from freshly killed wildlife staked outside. Or discovering that your two year old has flushed the last of your family's money down the toilet while your husband was away on a road trip. Or fighting an unexpected case of nerves in your first major league at bat while facing the legendary Warren Spahn. For every game every inning and every out there are stories. For decades after Jackie Robinson broke the major league color barrier the fight against racism continued in the minors. Ballplayers and their families who were expecting another typical winter league baseball season in Havana, Cuba suddenly found themselves in the middle of Fidel Castro's revolution. Players are not the only ones to be heard from. Over one hundred and fifty people involved in the game were interviewed for this book. There are umpires who had to flee angry mobs, a baseball broadcaster who was the last to re-create games in a studio and a manager who had to deal with a player overcome by the death of Elvis. Fans, family, scouts, owners, front office people and mascots share their experiences here. The chapters also cover superstitions, pratfalls, promotions, ballpark oddities, first experiences in professional ball, getting the call to the major leagues and finally hanging up one's glove. The game is filled with colorful characters and antics. There was Casey Stengel, still years away from his legendary major league managerial career who once threatened to wear a dress on the field. Ed Nottle was one of several ejected managers who got their revenge on the umpires while wearing some bizarre disguises that didn't include dresses. Players have had to tread carefully on minor league fields avoiding gopher holes and auto parts. A game was once cancelled due to a frog infestation. Discover why players were burning bats during a game in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. Or why a player used a peeled potato in a close game instead of a baseball. Find out which parks you could have won a racehorse in or perhaps a free funeral. This isn't the baseball you're going to see on ESPN but it's still a lot of fun.

Leslie's, 1911 Black Baseball's Last Team Standing William J. Plott, 2019-08-06 The Birmingham Black Barons were a nationally known team in baseball's Negro leagues from 1920 through 1962. Among its storied players were Hall of Famers Satchel Paige, Willie Mays and Mule Suttles. The Black Barons played in the final Negro Leagues World Series in 1948 and were a major drawing card when barnstorming throughout the United States and parts of Canada. This book chronicles the team's history and presents the only comprehensive roster of the hundreds of men who wore the Black Barons uniform.

Adjutant-General's Office, 1927 Film Clowns of the Depression Wes D. Gehring, 2007-02-16 The 1930s are routinely considered sound film's greatest comedy era. Though this golden age encompassed various genres of laughter, clown comedy is the most basic type. This work examines the Depression decade's most popular type of comedy: the clown or personality comedian. Focusing upon the Depression era, the study filters its analysis through twelve memorable pictures. Each merits an individual chapter in which it is critiqued. The films are deemed microcosmic representatives of the comic world and discussed in this context. While some of the comedians in this text have generated a great deal of previous analysis, funny men like Joe E. Brown and Eddie Cantor are all but forgotten. Nevertheless, they were comedy legends in their time and their legacy, as showcased in these movies, merits rediscovery by today's connoisseur of comedy. Even this book's more familiar figures, such as Charlie Chaplin and the Marx Brothers, are often simply relegated to being recognizable pop culture icons whose work has been neglected in recent years. This book attempts to address these oversights and to re-expose the brilliance and ingenuity with which the screen clowns contributed a comic resiliency that was desperately needed during the Depression and can still be greatly appreciated today. The films discussed are: City Lights (1931, Chaplin), The Kid from Spain (1932, Cantor), She Done Him Wrong (1933, Mae West), Duck Soup (1933, Marx Brothers), Sons of the Desert (1933, Laurel and Hardy), Judge Priest (1934, Will Rogers), It's a Gift (1934, W.C. Fields), Alibi (1935, Ike Brown), A Night at the Opera (1935, Marx Brothers), Modern Times (1936, Chaplin), Way Out West (1937, Laurel and Hardy), and The Cat and the Canary (1939, Bob Hope).

Baseball, 1986 This is the most comprehensive bibliography of baseball literature available, updating and expanding Anton Grobani's Guide to the Literature of Baseball (1975). The 21,000 citations are arranged by subject classifications. There are sections on the World Series, baseball cards, business aspects, the minor leagues, each of the teams, and a biographical section covering those connected with the game. Annotations are provided for many entries. There is an author index, title index, and information on obtaining difficult-to-locate material, including addresses. Based on research at the National Baseball Library in Cooperstown, NY, this work by a professional bibliographer will be the cornerstone of baseball research for the next decade. Baseball's Great Experiment Jules Tygiel, 1997 Offers a history of African American exclusion from baseball and assesses the changing racial attitudes that led up to Jackie Robinson's acceptance by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The Diamonds of Dixie Ernest J. Green, 1995 A die-hard baseball fan explores the varied world of the minor leagues.

The Virginia Sports Hall of Fame Clay Champoe, 2005 Since its first inaugural class was announced in 1972, more than 230 legendary individuals have become esteemed members of the Virginia Sports Hall of Fame and were awarded special places of honor, such as Arthur Ashe, Sam Snead, Lawrence Taylor, Moses Malone, and David Robinson, to mention only a few. Original. The Saturday Evening Post, 1930 The Baseball Bibliography Myron J. Smith, 2006 With over 57,000 entries, this two-volume set is the most comprehensive non-electronic, non-database print bibliography on any American sport.
