Developing Second-language Skills Kenneth Chastain, 1976 Advanced Proficiency and Exceptional Ability in Second Languages Kenneth Hyltenstam, 2016-07-25 While the literature on second language acquisition and use is overwhelmingly rich with respect to initial and intermediate stages of development present knowledge of levels of ultimate attainment that are equal or close to that of native speakers has so far not been presented in a coherent manner This is what the present volume aims to achieve In addition to chapters that summarize what is currently known about the grammatical lexical and discourse features that continue to exhibit instability at the most advanced levels of second language development the volume presents overviews of the incipient research on two unique learner populations

polyglots and employees in international call centres Polyglots defined as language users who are proficient in six or more second languages may be considered second language learners par excellence Call centre employees in economically less developed parts of the world are intriguing in how they cope with the high language proficiency requirements of their job In conclusion this book is relevant for all readers both professionals and students interested in the development of second language theory For language teachers the book provides insights that are profitable in classrooms for advanced learners

Developing Literacy in Second-language Learners National Literacy Panel on Language-Minority Children and Youth (U.S.),2006 This volume reports the findings of the National Literacy Panel on Language Minority Children and Youth The formal charge to the panel a distinguished group of expert researchers in reading language bilingualism research methods and education was to identify assess and synthesize research on the education of language minority children and youth with respect to their attainment of literacy Funding for the project was provided to the Center for Applied Linguistics and SRI International by the U S Department of Education s Institute of Education Sciences and the Office of English Language Acquisition with additional funding from the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development provided through the U S Department of Education The authors review the state of knowledge on the development of literacy in language minority children and youth organized around five specific themes Development of Literacy in Second Language Learners Cross linguistic Relationships in Second Language Learners Sociocultural Contexts and Literacy Development Educating Language Minority Students Instruction and Professional Development and Student Assessment Each part begins with a synthesis chapter that spells out the research questions for the chapters in that part provides background information describes the methodology used summarizes the empirical findings reported addresses methodological issues and makes recommendations for future research The following chapters provide more detail on the individual studies reviewed for specific research questions The volume includes two opening chapters Introduction and Methodology and Demographic Overview a closing chapter that summarizes the report identifies cross cutting themes and makes recommendations for future research and a CD ROM providing a searchable database of research references The audiences for this volume include researchers interested in the development of literacy in language minority children and youth as well as those studying literacy more generally and those concerned with improving the education of this population of students

The Role of Second Language Proficiency in the Development of Second Language Reading Efficiency Eynat Katz,1997 This study examines the role of second language proficiency in learning to read fluently in a second language Sixty subjects were randomly sampled from a Hebrew Day School in Toronto Twenty children were in each of grades two four and six All children had English as their first language L1 and Hebrew as their second language L2 In each grade subjects were given parallel tasks in Hebrew and English reading isolated words and reading these same words in a text Accuracy and speed were measured by timing the subjects as they performed each of these tasks They were also administered parallel comprehension and oral cloze sentence tasks in each language in order to determine their level of language proficiency syntactic and semantic knowledge In general subjects in grade 2 and 4 had an advantage in their L1 on all measures The results indicated that by grade 6 however subjects no longer do significantly better in their L1 English on the accuracy speed and proficiency measures The importance of semantic and syntactic knowledge in reading a second language and of the role of orthographic complexity are discussed

Modelling and Assessing Second Language Acquisition Kenneth Hyltenstam, Manfred Pienemann, 1985 This book forms an invaluable reference work for all teachers of second languages and researchers in the field of L2 acquisition It discusses the contribution that modern research into L2 acquisition makes to the curriculum development process It also provides the reader with arguments for and against the various approaches to teaching

Developing Second-language Skills Kenneth Chastain, 1988 Communicative proficiency and linguistic development Inge Bartning, Maisa Martin, Ineke Vedder, 2010 The Common European Framework of Reference for Languages CEFR has become the yardstick for teaching and testing language skills in Europe and elsewhere Yet little is known about the relationships between the communicative levels established using the can do statements of the CEFR and the developmental stages of grammatical and lexical development described by Second Language Acquisition SLA research This book presents empirical research by members of the SLATE network Second Language Acquisition and Testing in Europe aimed at bridging this gap The studies deal with several target languages including Dutch English Finnish French Italian Norwegian and Spanish with adult adolescent and child learners in both formal and informal contexts
