Task Force Report on Innovative Models of Mental Health Services for Children, Adolescents, and Their Families Scott W. Henggeler, 1994 Task Force members were selected for their widely respected research and clinical expertise pertaining to a particular child service system mental health education juvenile justice social welfare and primary care or for their longstanding leadership in the reform of mental health services for children These carefully chosen professionals set out to accomplish three goals to examine the state of mental health services for children and adolescents across the major child service systems to identify effective or promising models of treatment and service delivery to better meet the mental health needs of youth and to denote key barriers to the dissemination of such treatment and service delivery models. Divided into three sections, this report catalogs their findings. The first paper summarizes and synthesizes the key systems level and clinical level changes advocated within the report. The next set of articles examines innovative approaches to mental health treatment and service delivery within the major child service systems with conclusions based on empirical research and the informed guidance of experts. The final set identifies major barriers to the dissemination of innovative models and recommends strategies for overcoming these barriers. In its entirety, the report is intended to serve as a state-of-the-art document setting forth the principles upon which the reform of children's mental health services should be based.

Developmental Issues in the Clinical Treatment of Children Wendy K. Silverman, Thomas H. Ollendick, 1999
Developmental and Clinical Issues in the Treatment of Children is the first volume to address the needs of practicing clinicians and other professionals who work in applied mental health settings. It represents the first interface of clinical child psychology, developmental psychopathology, specific child disorders, and contextual issues. This text's primary purpose is to bring these areas together to build upon the current knowledge base about children's problems and child treatment. In summary, this compendium integrates the major clinical and developmental issues involved in the real treatment of children. The contents of each chapter are relevant to the needs and concerns of practitioners while based on findings from the empirical literature. Advances in Clinical Child Psychology Benjamin B. Lahey, Alan E. Kazdin, 1992-06-30
Advances in Clinical Child Psychology is an annual series designed to bring summaries of the latest developments in the field to psychologists, psychiatrists, educators, and other professionals who are concerned with troubled children. This volume, like its predecessors, attempts to highlight the important emerging issues and breakthroughs that are likely to guide clinical work and research in our field of inquiry in the near future. In selecting authors to contribute to this series, we seek out those whose work is innovative, relevant, and likely to influence future work in clinical child psychology and related fields. Each author is chosen either on the basis of potentially important new information or viewpoints in his or her own work or because the author is especially well qualified to discuss a topic that is not restricted to one program of research. In this volume, a wide range of particularly important topics is addressed. White and Sprague describe an innovative program of research aimed at identifying the underlying deficit in attention deficit disorder. Schonert-Reichl and Offer summarize and integrate research on gender differences in psychological symptoms among adolescents. Borden and Ollendick offer a cogent proposal concerning the development and differentiation of subtypes of autism based on social behavior.
