Diagnosing Corruption in Ethiopia Janelle Plummer, 2012-06-25

For decades corruption in Ethiopia has only been discussed at the margins Perhaps because many have not experienced corruption as a significant constraint to their lives and businesses or perhaps because a culture of circumspection has dampened open dialogue Ethiopia has neither seen the information flows nor the debate on corruption that most other countries have seen in recent years This study attempts to fill this information gap Conducted by the World Bank with financial support from the UK the Netherlands and Canada in conjunction with the Federal Ethics and Anti Corruption Commission of Ethiopia FEACC the study is an independent overview of corruption It attempts to map the nature of corruption in eight sectors in the country The studies focuses on three key objectives i to develop sector frameworks that enable mapping of the potential areas of corruption on a sector by sector basis ii to map the different forms and types of corrupt practices in the selected sectors and iii to consider the higher risk areas and identify appropriate sector or cross cutting responses for Government and other stakeholders The sectors covered are health education water justice construction land telecommunications and mining In designing the methodologies for undertaking the diagnostics the sector experts developed approaches that most suited the sector and stakeholder context However a number of universal principles have guided the approach One commonality in the methodology has been the effort to tap into the perceptions and knowledge of all stakeholders be they politicians senior government officials private sector businessmen civil society advocates or consumers of services The diagnostics strongly suggest that in Ethiopia corrupt practice in the delivery of basic services is comparatively limited and is potentially much lower than other low income countries When viewed together the findings of the study point towards an emerging pattern in sector level corruption with interesting variations in the levels of corruption across the sectors studied

The Transnationalization of Anti-Corruption Law Régis Bismuth, Jan Dunin-Wasowicz, Philip M. Nichols, 2021-05-27

The last twenty years have witnessed an astonishing transformation the fight against corruption has grown from a handful of local undertakings into a truly global effort Law occupies a central role in that effort and this timely book assesses the challenges faced in using law as it too morphs from a handful of local rules into a global regime The book presents the perspectives of a global array of scholars of policy makers and of practitioners Topics range from critical theoretical understandings of the global regime as a whole to regional and local experiences in implementing and influencing the regime including specific legal techniques such as deferred prosecution agreements addressing corruption issues in dispute resolution whistleblower protection civil and administrative prosecutions as well as blocking statutes The book also includes discussions of the future shape of the global regime the emergence of transnational compliance standards and discussions by leaders of international organizations that take a leading role in the transnationalization of anti corruption law The Transnationalization of Anti Corruption Law deals with the most salient

aspects of the global anti corruption regime It is written by people who contribute to the structure of the regime who practice within the regime and who study the regime It is written for anyone interested in corruption or corruption control in general anyone with a general interest in jurisprudence or in international law and especially anyone who is interested in critical thinking and analysis of how law can control corruption in a global context

Fighting the Diseases of Poverty Philip Stevens, 2017-07-05 Public discussion of global healthcare issues is dominated by those who believe that top down government driven interventions are the solution to the myriad health problems suffered by people in less developed countries This thinking is responsible for a plethora of harmful policies ranging from a drive towards socialized healthcare systems to calls for the centralization and semi nationalization of pharmaceutical research and development to impractical but grandiose UN sponsored schemes for tackling HIV AIDS and malaria In spite of the abysmal track record of top down approaches non governmental organizations and UN agencies continue to promote them to the detriment of the private sector economic development and human health The resulting politicization of diseases such as HIV AIDS has led to a diversion of resources away from more easily treatable diseases that affect more people Meanwhile cost effective and simple interventions such as vaccination are being subordinated to other more politically correct diseases This centralizing mindset has also resulted in many governments in less developed countries attempting to plan and control universal healthcare systems which has encouraged rationing inequitable access and entrenched corruption It has also seriously undermined the effectiveness of overseas development aid Moreover the politicization of diseases such as HIV AIDS has led to a diversion of resources away from more easily treatable diseases that affect more people As a result cost effective and simple interventions are neglected by donors There has to date been little public discussion of the role of markets and their underlying institutions property rights and the rule of law in improving human health Economic growth and globalization has led to unprecedented improvements in human health The challenge is to enable the poorest countries to take part more fully in this process This work demonstrates how current
