Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by applying knowledge and inventing things. Often "local" with a local focus, such as water quality or waste management, using science to make or improve solutions can have a positive impact. Understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, is the first step in finding an effective solution.

Designing solutions requires considering various conditions, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Sometimes, important trade-offs occur. Challenges, setbacks, and the inability to weigh trade-offs carefully. For example, creating materials for a house that may affect its cost and ease of use, cannot influence the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, documenting how it works, what conditions affected it, and any compromises (trade-offs) that have been and should be made on the way. Communication, using digital media, and reflecting on the results of the solution are important steps. This process can help identify future needs, locally encourage responsible decision-making, and build community trust.
