

World of the Dinosaurs

The world of dinosaurs is a vast and diverse one, with hundreds of different species that lived on Earth during the Mesozoic Era. These animals ranged in size from small, chicken-like creatures to massive, long-necked sauropods that could reach heights of over 100 feet. Dinosaurs lived in a variety of environments, from lush, tropical forests to arid, open plains. Some were herbivores, while others were carnivores. The study of dinosaurs, known as paleontology, has helped us learn a great deal about the history of life on Earth and the changes that have occurred over time.
