Boathouse Days:

Boathouse Days R. E. Roberts, 2001 Boathouse Days is a collection of sketches assembled from the dual points of view of a boy growing up in a boathouse on the Hudson River in the Inwood of the 1930s and the mature writer portraying his experiences on a genre canvas in a space time perspective Here he shows the rich and varied texture of life that grew out of the Great Depression in a geographically isolated section of northern Manhattan The author weaves into his chronicle the heritage and geography of the community the institutions of his day and the people who were a part of his life This little book illuminates a way of life that vanished after the second world war never to return and here is where the story ends
