Cognitive Relativism And Social Science:

Cognitive Relativism and Social Science Diederick Raven, 2020-02-18 Modern epistemology has been dominated by an empiricist theory of knowledge that assumes a direct individualistic relationship between the knowing subject and the object of knowledge Truth is held to be universal and non individualistic social and cultural factors are considered sources of distortion of true knowledge Since the late 1950s this view has been challenged by a cognitive relativism asserting that what is true is socially conditioned This volume examines the far reaching implications of this development for the social sciences Recently cognitive relativism has become a key issue of debate in anthropology philosophy and sociology In anthropology this is illustrated by a growing awareness of the similarity of all systems of knowledge In philosophy it is exemplified by the realization that traditional monolithic and absolutist concepts of truth have increasingly lost any power to make sense and to convince In sociology it is visible in a renewal of interest in a general sociology of knowledge Yet in spite of this convergence of interests practitioners of these three disciplines have on the whole shown no inclination to reach a consensus on the terms of reference that could facilitate an interdisciplinary approach Cognitive Relativism and Social Science aims to do just this It is a working assumption of this volume that as far as the subject of cognitive relativism is concerned anthropologists philosophers and sociologists should join forces rather than try to deal with the challenges of cognitive relativism within strictly imposed boundaries that normally separate academic disciplines Only when they work together will it be possible to treat the problems posed by cognitive relativism in an adequate way This volume provides the results of attempts to communicate on cognitive relativism across disciplinary boundaries This is must reading in the philosophy of social science and in social research theory

The One Culture? Jay A. Labinger, Harry Collins, 2010-08-15 So far the Science Wars have generated far more heat than light Combatants from one or the other of what C P Snow famously called the two cultures science versus the arts and humanities have launched bitter attacks but have seldom engaged in constructive dialogue about the central issues In The One Culture Jay A Labinger and Harry Collins have gathered together some of the world's foremost scientists and sociologists of science to exchange opinions and ideas rather than insults The contributors find surprising areas of broad agreement in a genuine conversation about science its legitimacy and authority as a means of understanding the world and whether science undermines the practice and findings of science and scientists The One Culture is organized into three parts The first consists of position papers written by scientists and sociologists of science which were distributed to all the participants The second presents commentaries on these papers drawing out and discussing their central themes and arguments In the third section participants respond to these critiques offering defenses clarifications and modifications of their positions Who can legitimately speak about science What is the proper role of scientific knowledge How should scientists interact with the rest of society in decision making Because science occupies such a central position in the world today such questions are vitally important Although there are no simple solutions The One Culture does show the reader exactly what is at stake in the Science Wars and provides a valuable framework for how to go about seeking the answers we so urgently need Contributors include Constance K Barsky Jean Bricmont Harry Collins Peter Dear Jane Gregory Jay A Labinger Michael Lynch N David Mermin Steve Miller Trevor Pinch Peter R Saulson Steven Shapin Alan Sokal Steven Weinberg Kenneth G Wilson
