

COGNITIVE STYLE INVENTORY

Introduction

Concept style of cognitive style:

Concept-style is hypothetical construct that has been developed to explain the process of mediation between stimulus and response. The term cognitive styles refer to the characteristic ways in which an individual conceptually organizes the environment. It is viewed that cognitive style refers to the way an individual filters and processes stimuli so that the environment takes on psychological meaning. It is representative of this use of term. As such cognitive representations modify the one-to-one relationship between stimulus and response. If it were not for these cognitive representations; stimulus would have been irrelevant for the individual as the individual would respond to stimulation in a robot like fashion.

Cognitive style in terms of consistent patterns of organizing and processing information. Coop and Sigel (1971) equated cognitive style with modes of behavior rather than a mediating process. They used the term cognitive style is denoting consistencies in individual mode of functioning in a variety of behavioral stimulations.

Therefore it's proper to mention here that cognitive style is conceived as one of the aspects of psychological differentiation. Psychological differentiation refers to differentiate mode of perceiving, judging and appraising things to which people are exposed to under different conditions. The notion of cognitive style has been defined as self-evident modes of functioning which the individual shows in his perceptual and intellectual activities (Witkin, et. al., 1962). It's conceptualized as stable attitude or habitual strategy which determines A persons typical modes of perceiving, remembering, and problem solving. There are several types of cognitive functioning among which field independence are well known. A field independent individual is found to be passive and less competent in analytical functioning having greater social orientation. He has poor impulsive control and undifferentiated self-concept. He is more socially sensitive. On the other hand, a field independent individual is found to be more active and competent in analytical functioning having less social orientation. He is less impulsive and socially insensitive.
