Collapse Of Cotton Tenancy:

The Collapse of Cotton Tenancy Charles Spurgeon Johnson, Edwin Rogers Embree, Will Winton Alexander, 1935 The cotton farmers although adding a billion dollars annually to the wealth of the world are the most impoverished and backward of all the large groups of producers in America Their status demands complete dependence it requires no education and demands no initiative since the landlord determines the choice of crop the method of cultivation and the method of sale The authors discuss the declining market of cotton and suggest a re homesteading project as a solution for the tenant farmers Originally published in 1935 A UNC Press Enduring Edition UNC Press Enduring Editions use the latest in digital technology to make available again books from our distinguished backlist that were previously out of print These editions are published unaltered from the original and are presented in affordable paperback formats bringing readers both historical and cultural value

Gilpin, Marybeth Gasman, 2012-02-01 The milestones for blacks in twentieth century America the Harlem Renaissance the struggle for equal education and the civil rights movement would have been inconceivable without the contributions of one important but often overlooked figure Charles S Johnson 1893 1956 This compelling biography demonstrates the scope of his achievements situates him among other black intellectuals of his time and casts new light on a pivotal era in the struggle for black equality in America An impresario of Harlem Renaissance culture an eminent Chicago trained sociologist a pioneering race relations leader and an educator of the generation that freed itself from legalized segregation Johnson was a visionary who linked the everyday struggles of blacks with the larger intellectual and political currents of the day His distinguished career included twenty eight years at Fisk University where he established the famed Race Relations Institute and became Fisk s first black president King Cotton in Modern

America D. Clayton Brown, 2011-02-25 King Cotton in Modern America places the once kingly crop in historical perspective showing how cotton culture was actually part of the larger culture of the United States despite many regarding its cultivation and sources as hopelessly backward Leaders in the industry acting through the National Cotton Council organized the various and often conflicting segments to make the commodity a viable part of the greater American economy The industry faced new challenges particularly the rise of foreign competition in production and the increase of man made fibers in the consumer market Modernization and efficiency became key elements for cotton planters The expansion of cotton growing areas into the Far West after 1945 enabled American growers to compete in the world market Internal dissension developed between the traditional cotton growing regions in the South and the new areas in the West particularly over the USDA cotton allotment program Mechanization had profound social and economic impacts Through music and literature and with special emphasis placed on the meaning of cotton to African Americans in the lore of Memphis's Beale Street blues music and African American migration off the land author D Clayton Brown carries cotton's story to the present

My Work Is That of Conservation Mark D. Hersey, 2011-05 George Washington Carver ca 1864-1943 is at once one of the most familiar and misunderstood figures in American history In My Work Is That of Conservation Mark D Hersey reveals the life and work of this fascinating man who is widely and reductively known as the African American scientist who developed a wide variety of uses for the peanut Carver had a truly prolific career dedicated to studying the ways in which people ought to interact with the natural world yet much of his work has been largely forgotten Hersey rectifies this by tracing the evolution of Carver's agricultural and environmental thought starting with his childhood in Missouri and Kansas and his education at the Iowa Agricultural College Carver's environmental vision came into focus when he moved to the Tuskegee Institute in Macon County Alabama where his sensibilities and training collided with the denuded agrosystems deep poverty and institutional racism of the Black Belt It was there that Carver realized his most profound agricultural thinking as his efforts to improve the lot of the area's poorest farmers forced him to adjust his conception of scientific agriculture Hersey shows that in the hands of pioneers like Carver Progressive Era agronomy was actually considerably greener than is often thought today My Work Is That of Conservation uses Carver's life story to explore aspects of southern environmental history and to place this important scientist within the early conservation movement

Historical Foundations of Black Reflective Sociology John H Stanfield II, 2016-06-03 John H Stanfield II a leading historian of Black social science distills decades of his research and thinking in a set of articles some original to the volume others from fugitive sources that trace the trajectories of Black scholars and scholarship in relationship to the broader African American experience over the past two centuries Stanfield's signature contributions to this research tradition range from the role of philanthropy in the study and life of African Americans to institutional racism in sociology and the impacts of race on scholarly careers His analyses run from global formulations to individual biographies including his own and stretch from the early decades of social science to the present This work creates a nuanced historical context for reflective Black sociology that will be of interest to social historians sociologists and scholars of color from all disciplines
