Darren Waterston:

Darren Waterston Darren Waterston, Benjamin Weissman, Amy Gerstler, 2001 Darren Waterston's early paintings were interpretations of conventional landscape imagery depicted as meditations on fertility and decomposition. Examples of the early work appear in this book but the majority of the paintings are from a more recent period where he shifts the focus of the work away from decaying abstraction into one of exoticism, decadence, and an underlying erotic sensuality. Waterston uses traditional painting materials and techniques and the multiple layers of paint that are the foundation for his works infuse them with a wet atmospheric quality. He also has an acute interest in the aesthetics of the East and motifs of the Orient punctuate every picture. The paintings that at first appear quite ethereal and whimsical upon further investigation reveal a sensuality combining a poetic language of flora and fauna with an overt observation about the human body and other creatures. The result is a complex layering of opposing forces: beautiful and unsettling, appealing and revealing, extroverted and introspective.

Remote Futures documents Darren Waterston's recent paintings exploring the allure and menace of utopias. These works at once Edenic and dystopian are realized in layers of oils and glazes on gessoed wood panels. Darren Waterston Darren Waterston, Greg Kucera Gallery, 2002. Darren Waterston, Darren Waterston Darren Waterston, David Pagel, Jacquelynn Baas, 2007. Darren Waterston's somber but sexy paintings layer curvy organic forms over strong colors in alluring riffs on the language of landscape. As abstract works with a visceral physicality they evoke a sense of place without geographic reference. Their night sky blues, mist grays, and blood reds are dotted with disorienting arrays of starry pinpoints, bubbles, ripples, and rays. Perhaps because his work could offer a window to anywhere, deep space, your backyard, or your synapses, it works at any scale. His most recent mural project, Was and Is Not and Is to Come for the San Jose Contemporary Art Center, was his largest to date, expanding over 150 feet and taking two weeks to execute. Waterston has exhibited internationally, is included in permanent collections at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art and the de Young Museum, and has been covered in ArtNews, Art in America, GQ, the Los Angeles Times, and the New York Times. Darren Waterston Darren Waterston, Noriko Gamblin, 1997. Darren Waterston Kohn Turner Gallery (Los Angeles), 1996. Out, 2003-06. Heather D Wayne, 2023-02-08 What is a reference to an Italian Egyptologist doing in Louisa May Alcott's portrait of domesticity Little Women? Why does Elizabeth Stuart Phelps's painter protagonist Avis Dobell know and care that her red shawl is dyed with desiccated beetles? Why might W. E. B. Du Bois's fictional sharecropper display a reproduction of a painting by William Adolphe Bouguereau near his cotton field? These questions and more are answered by Consuming Empire in US Fiction 1865 1930. An interdisciplinary study of references to internationally traded commodities in US fiction, Consuming Empire in US Fiction 1865 1930 assembles an integrated geopolitical analysis of Americans' material, gendered, and aesthetic experiences of empire at the turn of the twentieth century. Examining allusions to contested goods like cochineal, cotton, oranges, fur, gold, pearls, porcelain, and wheat, Consuming Empire in US Fiction 1865 1930 reveals a linked global imagination among authors who were often directly or indirectly critical of US imperial ambitions. Furthermore, Consuming Empire in US Fiction 1865 1930 considers the commodification of art itself, interpreting writers' allusions to paintings, sculptures, and artists as self-aware acknowledgments of their own complicity in global capitalism. As Consuming Empire in US Fiction 1865 1930 demonstrates, literary texts have long trained consumers to imagine their relationship to the world through the things they own.

Constellations of a Contemporary Romanticism Jacques Khalip, Forest Pyle, 2016-07-01 Constellations of a Contemporary Romanticism takes its title and point of departure from Walter Benjamin's concept of the historical constellation, which puts both contemporary and romanticism in play as period designations and critical paradigms. Featuring fascinating and diverse contributions by an international roster of distinguished scholars working in and out of romanticism, from deconstruction to new historicism, from queer theory to postcolonial studies, from visual culture to biopolitics, this volume makes good on a central tenet of Benjamin's conception of history: These critics grasp the constellation into which our own era has formed with a definite earlier one. Each of these essays approaches romanticism as a decisive and unexpired thought experiment that makes demands on and poses questions for our own time. What is the unlived of a contemporary romanticism? What has romanticism's singular untimeliness bequeathed to futurity? What is romanticism's contemporary redemption value for painting and politics, philosophy, and film?
