

The 5-Step Framework For COMMUNICATING STRATEGY

When it comes to communicating a strategy to your team, it can be difficult to know where to start. Here is a simplified framework you can follow to communicate strategy effectively to your team.

1

Start With Your Vision

Establish the problem you are aiming to solve with your strategy:

Who does this problem impact?

What are the human emotions associated with this problem?

Your vision should tie back to your organization's mission statement. This will help contextualize your strategy within your organization's overarching narrative, which can help motivate your team to want to impact that narrative through their work.

2

Set Clear & Measurable Objectives

Communicate what specific metrics the success of the project will be measured against. Some common types of project objectives are:

Financial Objectives

Revenue growth, sales targets, profit margins, returns on invested capital, diversified revenue base.

Business Objectives

Product launch, team growth, opening or closing an office).

Quality Objectives

Increase NPS score, reduce customer support response time.

Compliance Objectives

Compliance with certain regulations, meeting and exceeding health and safety regulations, meeting legal regulations.

Technical Objectives

Implementing new tech, automating a process, prototyping a product.

Performance Objectives

Number of successful product releases, delivering within a given budget or timeframe.

Marketing Objectives

Increase social media engagement, increasing site traffic, increasing sales leads, increasing brand awareness.
