

Nature vs. Nurture

Biologists believe that environmental influences modify genetic inheritance. They also believe that many behaviors are determined by a combination of inheritance and environmental influences. In fact, a 2014 study published in the journal Science found that the environment can influence the expression of genes.

Biologists believe that the fact that some behaviors are more common among people who share the same genetic inheritance is not necessarily due to inheritance. In fact, many behaviors are more common among people who share the same environment. For example, the fact that some people are more likely to be aggressive is not necessarily due to inheritance. It is possible that the environment can influence the expression of genes.

In contrast, biologists believe that some behaviors are more common among people who share the same genetic inheritance. This is because the fact that some people are more likely to be aggressive is not necessarily due to inheritance. It is possible that the environment can influence the expression of genes. For example, the fact that some people are more likely to be aggressive is not necessarily due to inheritance. It is possible that the environment can influence the expression of genes.
