The Reverend and the Peacemaker Roger Baker, 2021 Captain James R Cole was the third generation of the Cole family to carry the same pistol into combat James believed he knew the story of the old Long Colt the Peacemaker a 45 caliber revolver The first of his family to carry the gun was his grandfather who handed it down to James father His father handed down the weapon to James along with the tales of his grandfather s wartime experiences and stories of his own combat and all involved the same unique revolver James recalled his own experiences with the old weapon in the jungles of Vietnam The ancient weapon seemed to possess an aura of protective power over the soldier who carried it in combat However in the Vietnam War the long Colt would protect only Captain Cole s life thus he was the only survivor when his small command was overpowered in a fierce battle Badly wounded and grief stricken from the loss of his men he resigned his commission and dedicated the rest of his life to the care and welfare of others through gospel ministry Little did he know that national problems would hound him in his new life or the role the old Peacemaker would play As he attempted to build a life for himself and his new family in the Old South James would face ridicule as a veteran of the Vietnam War racial unrest and Islamic intervention But with God s grace the love of his beautiful wife and children and perhaps some other worldly assistance from the old Colt he pursued life in a sometimes dangerous but fulfilling manner
