An Aztec Memory:

Memory, Myth, and Time in Mexico Enrique Florescano, Kathryn R. Bork, 2014-03-19 In Memory Myth and Time in Mexico noted Mexican scholar Enrique Florescano's Memoria mexicana becomes available for the first time in English. A collection of essays tracing the many memories of the past created by different individuals and groups in Mexico, the book addresses the problem of memory and changing ideas of time in the way Mexicans conceive of their history. Original in perspective and broad in scope, ranging from the Aztec concept of the world and history to the ideas of independence, this book should appeal to a wide readership. An Aztec Memory Charles Fishman, 1996 Winner of the 1996 Anabiosis Press Chapbook Contest

Memory Traces Laura M. Amrhein, Cynthia Kristan-Graham, 2015-10-28 In Memory Traces art historians and archaeologists come together to examine the nature of sacred space in Mesoamerica. Through five well-known and important centers of political power and artistic invention in Mesoamerica: Tetitla at Teotihuacan, Tula Grande, the Mound of the Building Columns at El Tajín, the House of the Phalli at Chichén Itz, and Tonina, contributors explore the process of recognizing and defining sacred space, how sacred spaces were viewed and used both physically and symbolically, and what theoretical approaches are most useful for art historians and archaeologists seeking to understand these places. Memory Traces acknowledges that the creation, use, abandonment, and reuse of sacred space has a strongly recursive relation to collective memory and meanings linked to the places in question and reconciles issues of continuity and discontinuity of memory in ancient Mesoamerican sacred spaces. It will be of interest to students and scholars of Mesoamerican studies and material culture, art historians, architectural historians, and cultural anthropologists. From the moment of birth, girls were wrapped in rituals and traditions that reflected the empire's values and expectations for womanhood Unlike the rigid gender roles often portrayed in modern understandings of ancient civilizations Aztec society allowed for a range of female experiences especially depending on class family status and religious ties Still certain shared elements united the lives of Aztec girls as they grew into women of the empire A girl's life began with ceremony At birth a midwife would chant prayers over the infant asking the gods to guide her in her destined role as a homemaker mother or possibly priestess Symbolic objects like weaving tools were placed beside her marking her future contributions to the household and community Unlike boys who were given miniature shields and arrows to represent warfare girls were prepared for battles of a different kind those of domestic responsibility and cultural preservation Education for girls was both practical and spiritual While boys were trained for war or priesthood girls often learned domestic skills at home from mothers and elder women However this did not mean their education was informal or limited In fact daughters of commoners and nobles alike could attend tepochcalli community schools where they were instructed in ethics religion and the arts of weaving and food preparation Noble girls had access to even more advanced teachings at the calmecac the elite school where they could be groomed for religious roles or political marriages
