Mechanisms of Differentiation

Paul B. Fisher, 1990-08-27 Significant recent advances in cell culture technology now permit a detailed biochemical and molecular analysis of differentiation in both normal and tumor cells These studies are important in attempting to understand the complex factors involved in normal growth and development as well as the abnormalities associated with carcinogenesis

Mechanisms of Differentiation Volumes I and II is comprised of review chapters addressing various topics of current interest in this important area of research. Topics discussed include genes controlling differentiation, changes in gene expression during differentiation, induction of differentiation as a mode of action of chemotherapeutic agents, and the effect of cell shape, growth factors, and differentiation modulating agents on the differentiated cell phenotype. Mechanisms of Differentiation is valuable to researchers involved in differentiation and development, carcinogenesis, cell biology, chemotherapy, and immunology.

Luckner, L. Nover, H. Böhm, 2013-06-29

1 Secondary Metabolism and Differentiation. In addition to the primary metabolic reactions which are similar in all living beings, formation and breakdown of nucleic acids and proteins, as well as of their precursors of most carbohydrates of some carboxylic acids etc., a vast number of metabolic pathways lead to the formation of compounds peculiar to a few species or even to a single chemical race only. These reactions in accord with CZAPEK 1921 and PAECH 1950 are summed up under the term secondary metabolism and their products are called secondary metabolites. The wide variety of secondary products formed in nature includes such well known groups as alkaloids, antibiotics, cardiac glycosides, tannins, saponins, volatile oils, and others. A considerable number of them are of economic importance in therapeutics or technology. Although secondary products are produced by microorganisms, higher plants, and animals (LUCKNER 1972), most of the substances are found in the plant kingdom. The lack of mechanisms for true excretion in higher plants may result in this unequal distribution: the waste products of metabolism in plants instead being accumulated in the vacuoles, the cell walls, or in special excretory cells or spaces of the organism. Metabolic excretion of FREY WYSSLING 1935, 1970; MOTHES 1966a, b, 1972; LUCKNER et al 1976. Many secondary substances have however a web from the father of modern nautical fiction the legend of the flying dutchman goes back at least to medieval times and probably earlier than that in its basic form it is about a ghost ship that can never go into port and is doomed to sail the oceans forever indeed in marryat s day one would be hard pressed to find a ship on which at least one crewman
