John Joseph Lalor

Black Politicians:

Black Politicians and Reconstruction in Georgia Edmund L. Drago, 1992 This widely hailed study examines the reasons behind the quick demise of Radical Reconstruction in Georgia Edmund L Drago shows that a primary factor was ironically the extraordinary fairness on the part of the state's black leaders in dealing with their former masters Lacking the sizable and experienced antebellum free black class that existed in such states as South Carolina and Louisiana Georgia's former slaves turned to their ministers for political leadership Otherworldly and fatalistic the ministers preached a message in which all people even slaveholders were deserving of God's mercy Translated into politics this message quickly and predictably brought disaster Shortly after the black delegation to the state constitutional convention of 1867 1868 refused to support a provision guaranteeing blacks the right to hold office blacks were expelled from the state legislature Only then did the minister politicians realize that they would have to become more militant and black oriented if they were to challenge white supremacy Propelled by this newfound toughness they were soon able to achieve a limited success by bringing about the Second Reconstruction of Georgia In the preface to this new edition Drago surveys recent writing on Reconstruction and drawing upon his own research on black leadership in South Carolina compares experiences in that state to those in Georgia It is time he says to give greater consideration to the role black women played in shaping politics and to the emergence of a black conservative political tradition He also suggests that revisionists in reacting to the racism in traditional histories have sometimes glossed over issues of corruption and the black politician

Contours of African American Politics John F. Knutson, 2017-07-05 Contours of African American Politics chronicles the systematic study of African American politics and its subsequent recognition as an established field of scholarly inquiry African American politics emanates from the demands of the prolonged struggle for black liberation and empowerment Hence the study of African American politics has sought to track codify and analyze the struggle that has been mounted and to understand the historic and changing political status of African Americans within American society This two volume set presents a selection of scholarship on African American politics as it appeared in The National Political Science Review from its initial launch in 1989 to the spring of 2009 Represented are contributions from some of the leading scholars of African American politics who have helped to establish and sustain the field The volumes are organized around themes that derive from the unfolding real life drama of African American politics and its subsequent scholarly treatment The result is a window into the political efforts that meld the historically disparate strands of black political expressions into a reconstructed and strategically nimble electoral based mass mobilization necessary for optimizing the impact of the African American vote Sections in the volumes also chronicle the evolution of the National Conference of Black Political Scientists as a professional organization The two volumes illuminate a pivotal epoch in black political empowerment and provide a context for the future of black politics

Going Home Richard F. Fenno, 2003-04 Thirty years ago there were nine African Americans in the U S House of Representatives Today there are four times that number In Going Home the dean of congressional studies Richard F Fenno explores what representation has meant and means today to black voters and to the politicians they have elected to office Fenno follows the careers of four black representatives Louis Stokes Barbara Jordan Chaka Fattah and Stephanie Tubbs Jones from their home districts to the halls of the Capitol He finds that while these politicians had different visions of how they should represent their districts in part based on their individual preferences and in part based on the history of black politics in America they shared crucial organizational and symbolic connections to their constituents These connections which draw on a sense of linked fates are ones that only black representatives can provide to black constituents His detailed portraits and incisive analyses will be important for anyone interested in the workings of Congress or in black politics
