O'Sullivan,2026-03-12 In 1985 John Corcoran a garda informer within the ranks of the Cork IRA was abducted and brutally executed by the IRA No one has ever been charged with his murder but for decades speculation was rife that garda of the highest rank allowed Corcoran a father of eight to be murdered to protect Sean O Callaghan the state s most prized IRA informer during the Troubles Now for the first time J P O Sullivan Corcoran s Special Branch handler breaks his silence He reveals the chain of events leading to the killing including detailed reports he filed warning of potential threats to his informant s life that were systematically ignored by garda intelligence He recounts how he was inexplicably sidelined from the investigation into Corcoran s murder and later framed and convicted for a crime he did not commit in order to silence him and bury the truth O Sullivan s account is a damning indictment of garda complicity in covering up an IRA murder It exposes murky manoeuvres a flawed investigation and the devastating cost paid by a detective who refused to back down This is a story of betrayal and justice denied in a state under siege and one man s quest for justice Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House
