A Dictionary of Islam Thomas Patrick Hughes, 2015-06-04 Excerpt from A Dictionary of Islam Being a Cyclopaedia of the Doctrines Rites Ceremonies and Customs Together With the Technical and Theological Terms of the Muhammadan Religion The increased interest manifested in relation to all matters affecting the East and the great attention now given to the study of comparative religion seem to indicate that the time has come when an attempt should be made to place before the English speaking people of the world a systematic exposition of the doctrines of the Muslim Faith The present work is intended to supply this want by giving in a tabulated form a concise account of the doctrines rites ceremonies and customs together with the technical and theological terms of the Muhammadan religion Although compiled by a clergyman who has had the privilege of being engaged in missionary work at Peshawar for a period of twenty years this Dictionary of Islam is not intended to be a controversial attack on the religious system of Muhammad but rather an exposition of its principles and teachings Divided as the Muslim world is into numerous sects it has been I found impossible to take into consideration all the minor differences which exist amongst them The Dictionary is for the most part an exposition of the opinions of the Sunni sect with explanations of the chief points on which the Shiah and Wahhabi schools of thought differ from it Very special attention has been given to the views of the Wahhabis as it is the Author's conviction that they represent the earliest teachings of the Muslim Faith as they came from Muhammad and his immediate successors When it is remembered that according to Mr Wilfrid Blunt's estimate the Shiah sect only numbers some ten millions out of the one hundred and seventy five millions of Muhammadans in the world it will be seen that in compiling a Dictionary of Muhammadanism the Shiah tenets must of necessity occupy a secondary place in the study of the religion Still upon all important questions of theology and jurisprudence these differences have been noticed The present book does not profess to be a Biographical Dictionary About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books

Early Childhood Education for Muslim Children
Hasina Banu Ebrahim, 2016-12-08
Early Childhood Education for Muslim Children foregrounds the marginalised perspective of Muslim children aged three to five and examines how they are cared for and educated in centre-based provision in two provinces in post-apartheid South Africa. Both theological and social science perspectives are carefully interwoven to make sense of the construction of service provision for Muslims as a minority group in a secular democracy. This book uses a qualitative reflexive approach to amplify the voices of mothers, managers and teachers as the community of agents who shape priorities for young children in the context of a rapidly transforming society. The research demonstrates that the quest to establish an appropriate care network and a sound educative environment for Muslim children is riddled with complexities, struggles and tensions. In the light of changes in the home-based network for early education, centre-based provision has become an important infrastructure for Muslim communities seeking one-stop academic and Islamic education. The internal struggles encountered in this form of provision include inequities in access, struggles to package an appropriate curriculum and dealing with nurturance specific to the faith and for cultural formations supportive of citizenship. This book calls for critical engagement with issues of religious education in early childhood, social cohesion, formal systematic teacher education for Muslim teachers, curriculum development and parental support. It will contribute not only to the development of early education from an Islamic perspective but will also demonstrate how to expand discourses and practices to deal with diversity and faith development in early years. As such, it will appeal to academics, researchers and postgraduate students in the fields of early childhood education, religious studies, race and ethnic studies and childhood studies.
