

The age of surveillance capitalism (Shoshana Zuboff)

12 minutes to read

REVIEW Ico Maly 13/02/2019

★★★★☆ ISBN 9781781256848 PUBLISHER Profile Books

The age of Surveillance Capitalism by Shoshana Zuboff deserves a productive public and academic debate. It should not only be read and discussed by a broad audience; we can only hope that scholars across disciplines engage with her argument, finetune and improve it.

What is surveillance capitalism?

The main argument developed by Zuboff is simple, elegant and powerful. Zuboff argues that Google – just like Henry Ford in the 20th century – introduces a new type or form of capitalism: surveillance capitalism. The humans using the digital services of Google, Facebook and the likes, are not the product, as so many people by now argue, and they are certainly not the customers. They are the stuff from which surveillance capitalists scrape their 'raw material'.

Surveillance capitalism claims human experience as raw material for translation into behavioral data. That data is partially used to improve the digital products or services; but most importantly it is declared "proprietary behavioral surplus" fed into "machine intelligence" manufacturing processes producing "predictions products". These "behavioral prediction products" are sold in a new type of market: the "behavioral futures market" (Zuboff, 2019: 8).
