Lyell,1924 White Hunters Brian Herne,2001-06 This story of the great African safaris evokes the harmony that once existed between hunters and the elephant lion leopard buffalo and rhino that roamed East Africa in large numbers before poaching and politics intervened The author argues that there is an intricate connection between hunting and conservation and evidence that elephant and rhino populations are beginning to rebound after years of devastation

Lyell,2025-12-22T00:00:00Z THE following pages contain my memories of many years spent in the African bush where I did little else than hunt game and study their habits and tracks In 1906 my friend the late Major then Captain C H Stigand and myself brought out Central African Game and its Spoor and then we both wrote further volumes on the game independently I doubted whether I had enough material for another volume but on looking up my diaries I found that there was quite a lot I had left unsaid The first chapter deals with some of my experiences when tea planting in Eastern India but I had so little opportunity there to get really good sport that I think it best here to mainly confine my attention to Africa where I had a glorious time Eastern India is so jungly that without the use of trained elephants it is impossible for a man to do much with the rifle On the other hand Central Africa is a country where anyone can get or perhaps I should say could get as much shooting as he wants if he is a good walker and able to rough it in a bad climate for it is not a health resort Naturally a hunter's life in tropical Africa is not roses all the way although there are wonderful compensations for the hardships and fevers The South and East African Year Book & Guide ,1926
