African Armyworm Handbook:

The African Armyworm Handbook D. J. W. Rose, C. F. Dewhurst, W. W. Page, 2000-01 The African armyworm Spodoptera exempta Walker (Lepidoptera: Noctuidae) is a serious migratory pest of cereal crops and grasslands. It can impact upon the livelihoods of farmers in many countries of sub-Saharan Africa, Yemen, some Pacific islands, and parts of Australia. Containing as much up-to-date information as possible on the biology, ecology, epidemiology, and management of this pest, as well as containing an extensive list of useful references, this handbook will be of interest to those working in the agricultural sector, particularly those responsible for the control of migrant pests. Handbook for Farmers in South Africa, Issued in English and Afrikaans by Direction of the Minister of Agriculture South Africa. Department of Agriculture, 1929

Aeroecology Phillip B. Chilson, Winifred F. Frick, Jeffrey F. Kelly, Felix Liechti, 2018-03-23 This book consists of a diverse collection of chapters that seeks to broaden our fundamental understanding of the ecological function and biological importance of the Earth's lower atmosphere, which provides a huge living space for billions of animals moving within and across continents. Their migration, dispersal, and foraging activities connect water and land habitats within and across continents. Drawing upon the wide-ranging experience of the authors, the book takes an inherently interdisciplinary approach that serves to introduce the reader to the topic of aeroecology, frame some of the basic biological questions that can be addressed within the context of aeroecology, and highlight several existing and emerging technologies that are being used to promote aeroecological studies. The book begins with several background chapters that provide an introduction into such topics as atmospheric science, the concept of the habitat, animal physiology, and methods of navigation. It then continues with a broad discussion of observational methods available to and used by aeroecologists. Finally, several targeted examples of aeroecological studies are presented. Following the development of the chapters, the reader is provided with a unifying framework for investigating how the dynamic properties of meteorological conditions at local, regional, and global scales affect the organisms that depend on the air for foraging and movement. Material presented in the book should be of interest to anyone wishing to gain a comprehensive understanding of the aerosphere itself and the myriad airborne organisms that inhabit and depend upon this environment for their existence. The material should be accessible to a diverse set of readers at all stages of training and across a range of research expertise. Biopesticides in Environment and Food Security: Issues and Strategies

Opende Koul, G. S. Dhaliwal, S. Khokhar, Ram Singh, 2012-06-01 Drivers behind food security and crop protection issues, vis-à-vis the food losses caused by pests, include rapid human population increase, climate change, loss of beneficial on-farm biodiversity, reduction in per capita cropped land, water shortages, and pesticide withdrawals. Integrated pest management therefore becomes a compulsory strategy in agriculture, which offers a toolbox of complementary crop and region-specific crop protection solutions to address these rising pressures. IPM aims at more sustainable solutions by using complementary technologies, and one of them is the use of biopesticides, including genetically modified cropping systems. The aim is to reduce pests below economic thresholds utilizing key ecological services particularly biocontrol systems via semiochemicals biopesticides precision pest monitoring tools and rapid diagnostics In fact we are facing twin problems of environment and food security for the expanding population and it is necessary to ensure adequate pesticide free food The ecofriendly nature of biopesticide products suggests environment protection and safety for natural enemies and non target organisms However their adoption and use have lagged behind due to certain constraints like variable performance under field situations lack of quality standards and interest by big industrial houses and cumbersome regulatory procedures The present book is an attempt to critically debate over all these issues and suggest a road map for future

Technology Development Assistance for Agriculture Norman Clark, Andy Frost, Ian Maudlin, Andrew Ward, 2013-05-02 Stemming from an 11 year DFID funded programme under its Renewable Natural Resources Research Strategy RNRRS Technology Development Assistance for Agriculture Putting Research into Low Income Countries reviews

part of this programme as a case study of a broader issue of technology development for Africa. Controversially it critiques current international technology development assistance and focuses on the potential role of the private sector in agricultural technology development as well as providing insights for future cognate science policy and practice. The book focuses on the RIU Best Bets Africa sub programme. This identified promising proposals to take existing agriculture research products and put these into use in ways that would benefit the poor in developing countries. The sum set aside for this was 5 million. The empirical sections of the book cover project selection progress and programme management over a 2009-2012 period with special attention paid to lessons learned that may have implications for future cognate technology development assistance. This topical book gives direct evidence of meeting objectives and delivering real changes in technology development for Africa to postgraduate students, researchers, international bodies, NGOs, policy makers and government organisations working on natural resource management, technology development assistance and low income country agriculture.
