After School 1:

Who Marries Whom? Hans-Peter Blossfeld, A. Timm, 2012-12-06 Marriage and social inequality are closely interrelated. Marriage is dependent on the structure of marriage markets and marriage patterns have consequences for social inequality. This book demonstrates that in most modern societies the educational system has become an increasingly important marriage market particularly for those who are highly qualified. Educational expansion in general and the rising educational participation of women in particular unintentionally have increased the rate of assortative meeting and assortative mating across birth cohorts. Rising educational homogamy means that social inequality is further enhanced through marriage because better and worse educated single men and women pool their economic and sociocultural advantages and disadvantages within couples. In this book we study the changing role of the educational system as a marriage market in modern societies from a cross national comparative perspective. Using life history data from a broad range of industrialized countries and longitudinal statistical models we analyze the process of spouse selection in the life courses of single men and women step by step. The countries included in this book vary widely in important characteristics such as demographic behavior and institutional characteristics. The life course approach explicitly recognizes the dynamic nature of partner decisions, the importance of educational roles and institutional circumstances as young men and women move through their life paths and the cumulation of advantages and disadvantages experienced by individuals.

American Perspectives on Learning Communities and Opportunities in the Maker Movement Barker, Bradley S., 2019-01-11 The maker movement culture emphasizes informal peer led and shared learning while driving innovation. Even though some experts view the maker movement as a move backward to pre industrial revolution manufacturing the purpose of making is not to have an abundance of tools in one space rather it is about helping participants create personally meaningful projects with the help of mentors, experts and peers in ad hoc learning communities. American Perspectives on Learning Communities and Opportunities in the Maker Movement is an essential reference source that discusses the maker movement in the United States, artisanal perspectives and the learning through doing perspective. Featuring research on topics such as educational spaces, management, creativity, labs, makerspaces and operating procedures, this book is ideally designed for entrepreneurs, artisans, academicians, researchers, manufacturing professionals and students.
