

Mary

This is the Question

Not Mary

Children (Please God) - constant companions who will feel interest in me - must be
 - better than a dog or horse - beloved & played with - Home & someone to take care of house - class of dress for her interests - Don't think of my health - I don't want a child - but terrible life of time -

My God, it is unthinkable to think of spending one whole life, like a winter here, working, working & winter after it - No, no want to - I might live all one day -

House - Only picture to yourself a nice wife on a sofa with good fire, & books & music perhaps - Compare this vision with the dingy reality of St Mark's Mary - Mary Mary L.E.D.

No children, (no second life) as one to care for me in old age - what is the use of working is what separates from near & dear friends - who are near - how friends to the old - right relation freedom to go where one likes - choice of society & little bits - convenience of clean men to clubs - but power to visit relations, & to head in my life - to have the expense & anxiety of children - perhaps something - life of time - want and in the evening - fatigue & sleep - anxiety & responsibility - life money for books or if my children found to give mistakes - (But then it is very bad to work too hard) Perhaps my wife would like London, then the country is banishment & degradation with indifferent, idle folk -

Against Marriage

K Morrison

Against Marriage:

Against Marriage Clare Chambers, 2017 Against Marriage argues that marriage violates both equality and liberty and should not be recognized by the state. Clare Chambers shows how feminist and liberal principles require creation of a marriage free state one in which private marriages whether religious or secular would have no legal status. Part One makes the case against marriage. Chambers investigates the critique of marriage that has developed within feminist and liberal theory. Feminists have long argued that state recognised marriage is a violation of equality. Chambers endorses the feminist view and argues in contrast to recent egalitarian pro marriage movements that same sex marriage is not enough to make marriage equal. The egalitarian case against marriage is the most fundamental argument of Against Marriage. But Chambers also argues that state recognised marriage violates liberty including the political liberal version of liberty that is based on neutrality between conceptions of the good. Part Two sets out the case for the marriage free state. Chambers criticizes recent arguments that traditional marriage should be replaced with either a reformed version of marriage such as civil partnership or a purely contractual model of relationship regulation. She then sets out a new model for the legal regulation of personal relationships. Instead of regulating by status the state should regulate relationships according to the practices they involve. Instead of regulating relationships holistically assuming that relationship practices are bundled together in one significant relationship the marriage free state regulates practices on a piecemeal basis. The marriage free state thus employs piecemeal practice based regulation. It may regulate private marriages including religious marriages so as to protect equality. But it takes no interest in defining or protecting the meaning of marriage.

The Case Against Marriage Glenn

Campbell, 2013-07-01 The Case Against Marriage What You're Really Getting What You've Got To Lose. Not just a critique of marriage but one of the best books EVER on romantic relationships and how they really work. What do people want from love? How do they think marriage will help them and what does it really give them? Marriage is all about love right? Actually it's more about money. Behind the romantic language marriage is primarily a financial agreement merging the assets and liabilities of two individuals into a single corporate entity. After your wedding the money you earn and debts you incur are no longer legally yours they belong to the marital community a common pot that both of you contribute to and draw from. It's a lot like Communism an idealistic sharing of resources and risks supposedly for the common good. What could go wrong with this plan? Pretty much the same things that brought down political Communism in the late 20th Century. It slows growth suppresses initiative dilutes responsibility and mires decisions in bureaucracy. Healthy relationships need clear boundaries and marriage erases too many of them at once. Marriage was designed for medieval times. Back then life was hard and short most marriages were arranged and a woman was essentially the property of her husband. Marriage was a sort of licensing system for sex and childbirth. Once the relationship was officially approved and the religious ceremony concluded the couple's overriding goal was to produce as many children as possible knowing that many would die. Times have changed. Birth control longer life spans sexual freedom and women's rights have rewritten the rules of matrimony Under the laws of most Western countries marriage is no longer a sex license or child rearing contract only a contract to merge financial resources It's only money couples may say but Glenn Campbell argues that love and money are separate issues that should be kept that way In modern Western society unmarried people can legally have sex live together raise children buy property together and do nearly everything else associated with a committed relationship so why do they need to marry at all What are you really getting when you walk down the aisle Is marriage merely a public announcement to make your relationship official or does it fundamentally change the relationship With simple powerful and accessible arguments The Case Against Marriage explains why if you truly love someone marriage may not be the wisest way to show it Against Marriage Clare Chambers, 2017 Clare Chambers argues that marriage violates both equality and liberty and should not be recognized by the state She shows how feminist and liberal principles require creation of a marriage free state one in which private marriages whether religious or secular would have no legal status

Engaging the Doctrine of Marriage Matthew Levering, 2020-08-12 This book is the next volume in Levering's Engaging Doctrine series The prior volume of the series examined the doctrine of creation The present volume examines the purpose of creation the marriage of God and humans God created the cosmos for the purpose of the marriage of God and his people and through his people the marriage of God and the entire creation Given that the central meaning or prime analogate of marriage is the marriage of God and humankind the study of human marriage needs to be shaped by this eschatological goal and foregrounded as a dogmatic theme After a first chapter defending and explaining the biblical witness to the marriage of God and his people the book explores various themes marriage as an image of God original sin as the fall of the primordial marriage the cross of Jesus Christ and marital self-sacrificial love the procreative and unitive ends of marriage marriage as a sacrament and marriage's importance for social justice and for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God Along the way the book provides an introduction to the key biblical patristic medieval modern and contemporary thinkers and controversies regarding the doctrine of marriage Against Marriage Bruce Benderson, Hedi El Kholti, Semiotext(e), 2014

In Salve of Marriage Mokes Gama, 2016-06-16 Within the past fifty years of social transformations the institution of marriage has witnessed a portentous shrinkage in size and importance The rates of divorce even as they seem to be leveling off today compared with few decades ago are still a source of much confusion Challenges in interpersonal relations between men and women with an aim of forming a family have become even more complicated rendering marriages extraneous For the young adults however the so-called millennials who continue to be flustered by the welter of demographic changes and sociological experiences marked with a growing power of women in socioeconomic status and constantly in search of explanations a marriage as a rite of passage is still relevant But if we're to salvage the institution of marriage from extinction and that of family defined by father mother and children says Mokes Gama we must critically analyze our own attitudes on patriarchal feminism education and individualistic values that we embrace
