Crystal Identification with the Polarizing Microscope R.E. Stoiber, S.A. Morse, 2012-12-06 Some of the simpler measurements of optical mineralogy are so precise and powerful that they give satisfaction to beginning students Not long after mastering the strike and dip of rock surfaces with the Brunton compass many geology students are able to determine precisely the identity of quartz or the anorthite content of plagioclase or the magnesium ratio of pyroxene with the polarizing or petrographic microscope by means of measuring refractive index to better than one part in a thousand Very little training and almost no theory are needed to achieve these skills But there inevitably comes a time when theory is needed either to get on with the art or simply to reconstruct from first principles what is going on when rote memory fails In this book we hope to provide both the rote methods and the theoretical background for practitioners at all levels of experience We draw from several careers ours our colleagues and our students in teaching the subject at various levels of sophistication Our book is intended to serve the needs of industrial and forensic scientists as well as petrographers who deal with rocks Much of our treatment is based on new research both in matters of presentation and in the optical determination of minerals and other materials

Pathobiology of the Human Atherosclerotic Plaque Seymour

Glagov,William P., III Newman,Sheldon A. Schaffer,2012-12-06 Seymour Glagov The last meeting devoted exclusively to an examination of the atherosclerotic plaque took place in Chicago 25 years ago under the joint auspices of the Council on Arteriosclerosis of the American Heart Association and the Chicago Heart Association The proceedings were published subsequently in a volume entitled Evolution of the Atherosclerotic Plaque edited by Richard J Jones 1 Both experimental and human lesions were considered and several provocative new approaches to the disorder were discussed The electron microscope was being applied systematically to the study of blood vessels at that time so that details of the infrastructure and cellular composition of the artery wall and of atherosclerotic lesions were presented in some detail There was as one result of these explorations considerable discussion of morphologic evidence suggesting that the principal cell involved in the atherogenic process was neither the fibroblast nor the macrophage as had been supposed but the smooth muscle cell In particular the findings indicated that this cell could incorporate lipid and become a foam cell
