Before We Had Words:

Before We Had Words Sheldon P. Zitner, 2002 Words across a Ouija Board Memory is the mother of the Muses said the Greeks What we write are shadows of recollections fictions growing out of other fictions But now these words grow out of memory failing as where and when blanch slowly to perhaps The two who sheltered from the sudden downpour hugging close or woke to each other in the dark or quarreled hatefully were they snatches of old stories or were you once my wife Death veils you in the features of passers by and age makes yellow secrets of our letters until the past is unalloyed with circumstance and becomes pure moments of unearned deserving Before I Had the Word Brooke Sahni, 2021-11-15 The poems in Before I Had the Word explore the divine within the secular mundane world and often challenge the definition of holiness Sahni uses her religious and cultural backgrounds Sikhism and Judaism as springboards from which to question notions of the ecstatic in nature sexuality and the body Religious and spiritual ways of knowing the sacred in the mundane how knowledge and story manifest in the body language and how one shapes meaning are also central to this work Language the speaker might argue seeks to create meaning much in the same way religions and spiritualities do but ultimately falls short due to the ineffability of the ecstatic experience The book attempts to conflate even dissolve the idea that mundane experience is separate from religious holy experience it all depends on how one would choose to word it Some might use god or holy the speaker might use elm or paper or even questions In a book that seems more concerned with the questions rather than the answers the speaker tries to fill absence of all kinds cultural sexual etc with knowledge The poems in Before I Had the Word are exploratory narrative driven and seek to challenge religious doctrine without making any accusations Even when Sahni comes close to challenging organized religion she still poses that interrogation as a question I m not saying we should replace god with art or am I The poems are unified in their mission to question rather than to answer Many of the poems that make up Before I Had the Word have been published in Prairie Schooner Cimarron Review The Missouri Review The Cincinnati Review Denver Quarterly Nimrod 32 Poems and elsewhere Is it God's Word? Joseph Wheless, 1926

Leveling the Playing Field Rod Scher, 2016-08-01 Leveling the Playing Field explores the technologies that trickle down to the rest of us those that were once the domain of the wealthy and powerful and which therefore tended to make them even more wealthy and powerful Now though these technologies from books to computers to 3D printing and beyond have become part of a common toolkit one accessible to almost anyone or at least to many more than had heretofore had access This is what happens with most technologies They begin in the hands of the few and they end up in the hands of the many Along the way they sometimes transform the world Cobbett's Complete Collection of State Trials and Proceedings for High Treason and Other Crimes and Misdemeanors from the Earliest Period to the Present Time ... Thomas Bayly Howell, 1813 A True Relation of the Travels and Perilous Adventures of Mathew Dudgeon, Gentleman Mathew Dudgeon, 1894 Lavengro; the scholar, the gypsy, the priest. with notes and an intr. by F.H.
