Vollmer, 2013-03-14 We act for reasons But it is sometimes claimed the mental states and events that make up reasons are not sufficient conditions of actions Reasons never make actions happen We as agents persons selves subjects make our actions happen Actions are done by us not elicited by reasons The present essay is an attempt to understand this concept of agent causality Who or what is an agent And how in virtue of what does an agent do things or refrain from doing them The first chapter deals with problems in the theory of action that seem to require the assumption that actions are controlled by agents Chapters two and three then review and discuss theories of agent causality Chapters four and five make up the central parts of the essay in which my own solution is put forth and chapter six presents some data that seem to support this view Chapter seven discusses how the theory can be reconciled with neuro physiological facts And in the last two chapters the theory is confronted with conflicting viewpoints and phenomena Daniel Robinson and Richard Swinburne took time to read parts of the manuscript in draft form Though they disagree with my main viewpoints on the

Self-consciousness and "split" Brains Elizabeth Schechter,2018 Could a single human being ever have multiple conscious minds Some human beings do The corpus callosum is a large pathway connecting the two hemispheres of the brain In the second half of the twentieth century a number of people had this pathway cut through as a treatment for epilepsy They became colloquially known as split brain subjects After the two hemispheres of the brain are cortically separated in this way they begin to operate unusually independently of each other in the realm of thought action and conscious experience almost as if each hemisphere now had a mind of its own Philosophical discussion of the split brain cases has overwhelmingly focused on questions of psychological identity in split brain subjects questions like How many subjects of experience is a split brain subject How many intentional agents How many persons On the one hand under experimental conditions split brain subjects often act in ways difficult to understand except in terms of each of them having two distinct streams or centers of consciousness Split brain subjects thus evoke the duality intuition that a single split brain human being is somehow composed of two thinking experiencing and acting things On the other hand a split brain subject nonetheless seems like one of us at the end of the day rather than like two people sharing one body In other words split brain subjects also evoke the unity intuition that a split brain subject is one person Elizabeth Schechter argues that there are in fact two minds subjects of experience and intentional agents inside each split brain human being right and left On the other hand each split brain subject is nonetheless one of us The key to reconciling these two claims is to understand the ways in which each of us is
