Aging In Minority Groups Sage Focus Editions:

Aging in Minority Groups R. L. McNeely, John N. Colen, 1983-07 Older members of minority groups are discriminated against not only because they are old but because of their ethnic group. Perhaps for this reason studies of older people in minorities have tended to approach the subject as a social problem. This volume of essays written by minority group contributors takes a more positive view. The contributions focus on how normal members of minorities cope with the problems of being old. These normative patterns, the demographics of older minority group members, and issues of service delivery and policy are examined.

Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), Age or Need? Bernice L. Neugarten, 1983 Should benefits for older people be based on age or need? Do programmes that serve only older people deflect resources that should go to other people? Some of the contributors to this volume argue that social service programmes should be based on need rather than defined groups of people. Apart from anything else, age-based programmes confirm negative stereotypes of older people and lump them into an undifferentiated group. But would the reform of social services along these lines jeopardize the recent progress made in the condition of older people? New thoughts and new information are provided in support of both arguments. Here is a ringside seat at a critical juncture in the social reconstruction of old age.

Critical Issues in Aging Policy Edgar Borgatta, Rhonda J. V. Montgomery, 1987-06 Giving a comprehensive overview of the discipline, this book is designed as a supplementary text for students of social gerontology and ageing policy. Highlighting policy implications, specialists consider issues such as long-term care, ways of measuring well-being, social relationships of the elderly, attitudes to retirement, health and crime. The book does a good job in prompting deeper consideration of day-to-day issues about elderly people and points up many unexplored areas worthy of research. This is a useful book combining much of general interest for staff working with older people with clear and important messages for its target audience of researchers and policy theorists.

GPS 3 2 Ageing, Health, and Family Timothy H. Brubaker, 1987-07 Long-term care of the elderly has become an important issue in recent years. Researchers and policy makers are urgently seeking ways of improving social service systems in response to a dramatic increase in the number of older people as a percentage of the total population. In this comprehensive collection of original papers, leading scholars and practitioners draw on the latest empirical research in their discussion of the role of family members as informal care, the interaction between families and social service systems, both community-based and institutional, and the policy implications of integrating family members into the continuum of long-term care of the elderly.

Subject Guide to Books in Print, 2001 Resources in Education, 1995 Ethnic Conflict Jerry Boucher, Dan Landis, Karen Arnold Clark, 1987 International Perspectives on Ethnic Conflict focuses on conflict between ethnic groups which are not organized as nation states By studying ethnic conflict the authors indicate crucial variables which are relevant to the understanding of superpower or minipower rivalry and violence The conclusion considers possible political economic and social solutions which will minimize the probability of conflict and the possibility of social catastrophe

Children and Microcomputers Milton Chen, William Paisley, 1985-06 Microcomputers have been acquired in homes and schools faster than any educational technology in history The pace of these technological changes presents social researchers with many stimulating questions Children and Microcomputers is a compilation of research on children's use of microcomputers It gives a brief history of microcomputers and related microprocessor technologies together with an analysis of their distinguishing features and patterns of diffusion The contributors review past and current research on utilization and effect and project future directions for research

Ethnography in Educational Evaluation David M. Fetterman, 1984-02 The progress that ethnographies have been making in educational evaluation and how ethnography has adapted to the educational sphere is analysed in this book A diverse selection of case studies illustrates the intricacies of the issues and concerns involved in this process of adaptation The book is divided into three sections The first presents an overview of the state of the art and a discussion of ethnographic techniques in evaluation research A series of illustrative case studies of ethnographic evaluation are explored and examined in the second section The case studies include national studies as well as local and international level studies The final section addresses theoretical and ethical dilemmas in ethnographic evaluation From publisher's description

Children's Ethnic Socialization Jean S. Phinney, M. J. Rotherham, Mary Jane Rotheram-Borus, 1987-03 Published in cooperation with the Society for Research in Child Development Most children whether from majority or minority ethnic groups have contact with groups other than their own and must learn to live with ethnic diversity How do children respond to and deal with the differences among groups in both the observable characteristics and in the less obvious values and norms How do children come to understand the meaning of their own and others ethnic group membership How does the impact of ethnicity change with development These are some of the questions that this book addresses The aim of this edited volume is to provide an integration of existing research and theory about the process by which ethnicity affects children and the ways in which children come to understand their own and others ethnicity Research in this area contributes to the understanding of developmental processes that shape children's self concept and self esteem their attitudes and behaviors toward their own and other groups as well as the way they are evaluated by others Understanding such processes may suggest methods of facilitating a child's personal development and promoting positive cross ethnic interactions This book is an excellent reference source for professionals working in the areas of developmental psychology education social work and ethnic studies The development of child ethnic identity and cognizance of ethnic difference is well covered in this collection of seminal essays by psychologists and other professionals concerned with ethnicity and its manifestations The collection as a whole stresses the conclusions that ethnic group differences have a significant impact on development and that this impact varies with the age of the child The collection will serve as a basic source for investigators into childhood ethnicity Upper division undergraduates and above Choice The book will benefit therapists and researchers engaged with minority populations Teachers of developmental psychology and human behavior would also find it useful Readings A Journal of Reviews and Commentary in Mental Health Phinney and Rotheram provide a valuable summary of ethnic differences along the dimensions of group versus individual orientation active versus passive coping style attitudes toward authority and expressive versus restrained communication Readers will obtain some valuable insights on children s ethnic attitudes and identification from this book Contemporary Psychology Power Elites in Organizations G. William Domhoff, Thomas R. Dye, 1987-03 These essays comprise recent theory and research on the role of elites within society Four empirical studies consider power structures within organizations corporations government agencies and private social service agencies The ways in which private organizations and their leaders relate to government are explored and theoretical essays on the role of elites from different perspectives are presented Bibliographic Index, 1986 Recording for the Blind & Dyslexic, ... Catalog of Books, 1996 Books in Print, 1994 Group Decision Making Walter C. Swap, 1984-02 The need to understand decision making processes and develop individual decision making skills is vital in modern societies Increasingly however decisions are being made in a group context where the study of individual decision making has limited utility When people gather in a group a new entity is created The contributors to this volume examine the importance of various factors to decision making including membership characteristics the nature of the task group cohesiveness size channels of communication and leadership
