

THE AGONY COLUMN

By Earl Derr Biggers

ILLUSTRATED BY WILL CRAIG

TWO years ago, in July, London was almost unpreparedly hit. It seemed, looking back, as though the big, hazy city in those days was doomed to receive an onslaught of torments—an inevitable bit of preparation for the hell that was soon to break in the guise of the great war. About the soda-water bar in the drug store near the Hotel Cecil many Americans tourists found solace in the slugs and crosses of beer. Through the open windows of the Pharmacy two shops you might catch glimpses of the English, consuming quarts of hot tea in order to become cool. It is a practice they never try.

About nine o'clock on the morning of Friday, July twenty-fourth, in that memorable year thirteen hundred and fourteen, Geoffrey West left his apartments in Adelphi Terrace and set out for breakfast at the Carlton. He had found the breakfast room of that dignified hotel the noisiest in London, and through some mistake, for the reason had passed, strawberries might still be had there. As he took his way through the crowded Strand, surrounded on all sides by honest British faces wet with honest British perspiration, he thought longingly of his rooms in Washington Square, New York. For West, despite the fact that Geoffrey was an American, an Kansan, his native state, and only passing business was at that moment holding him in England, far from the country that gives off unusually many newspaper articles.

At the Carlton news stand West bought two morning papers—the Times for study and the Mail for entertainment—and then passed on into the restaurant. His waiter—a tall, soldierly Prussian, more blond than West himself—saw him coming and, with a nod and a mechanical German smile, set out for the plate of strawberries which he knew would be the first thing devoured by the American. West seated himself at his usual table and, spreading out the Daily Mail, sought his favorite column. The first item in that column brought a delighted smile to his face:

"The one who calls me Dearest is not genuine or they would write to me."

Approved of all literate and English journalists, well versed in news what department it was that appended next to West. During his three weeks in London he had been following, with the honest joy, the daily grins of Personal Notices in the Mail. This sort of intimate message, popularly known as the Agony Column, has long been an honored institution in the English press. In the days of Elizabeth Holman it was in the Times that it flourished and criticism was treated in such a way that he had inserted some affecting, inoperative message in it. Later the Telegraph gave it news; but, with the advent of penny journalism, the single soul moved on, never to the Mail.

Tragedy and comedy mingle in the Agony Column. Eying one's own page to return for forgiveness, unrepentant culture are mutual foes. Father has wronged daughter. Oh, Dearest Girl! Leave this world alone by itself and Alas! and Alas! are frankly published—all have made a word—for all the love to send it. The profession in the house, deary states with fervor that the blood government who got off the train at Shepherd's Bush has quite with his heart. Will she permit his address? Answer: his department.

For three weeks West had found this sort of thing delightful reading. Best of all, he could detect in these messages nothing that was not sane and innocent. At their worst they were merely an effort to attract old Lady Conventions; this institution was as rare in the British, he felt it should be encouraged. Besides, he was heartily fond of mystery and romance, and these engaging tales hovered about the column. So, while watching for his strawberries, he called over the ungrammatical outburst of the young lady who had come to doubt the gentleness of him who called her Dearest. He passed on to the second item of the morning. Spoke one whom heart had been completely compared:

My Lady sleeps. She of Texas dream. Curious and from Victoria, Wednesday night. Curious program. Curiousness answering inquiry divine acquaintance. Reply here.—Lo Ros.

West made a mental note to watch for the reply of curio lovers. The next message proved to be one of Ag's lyrics—now almost a daily feature of the column:

DEAREST: Tender, loving wishes to my dear one. Only to be with you now and always. None "false in my eyes." Your name is made to me. I love you more than life itself, my own beautiful darling, my proud sweetheart, my joy, my all! Besides of everybody. Kiss your dear hands for me. Love you only. Thine true.—Nix.

Which, reflected West, was generous of Ag—at least, a word—and in striking contrast to the previous lover who wrote, further along in the column:

—loves deary; watches; longing; mine —

But these extremely personal notices ran not alone to him. Mystery, too, was present, especially in the aquatic utterances:

DEAREST MEXICAN: Not mine. Alligator killings now. "It's well, delighted.—Piper Post.

And the rather ambiguous suggestions:

DEarest: First round, tooth game. Please. You will please Mr. Noe.

At this point West's strawberries arrived and even the Agony Column could not hold his interest. When the last red berry was eaten he turned back to read:

WARRIORS: Wed. 11:30 train. Lady who left in tent and would, care to know girl, gray coat?—Sturman.

Also the more dignified request put forward by

GENTLE CHARM: Gentleman who saw lady in house 2 Monday morning in Great Central Hotel 221 would greatly value opportunity of obtaining introduction.

The Novelty of Newspapers Matthew Rubery, 2009-07-28 Arising in the 1800s and soon drawing a million readers a day the commercial press profoundly influenced the work of Bront Braddon Dickens Conrad James Trollope and others who mined print journalism for fictional techniques Five of the most important of these narrative conventions the shipping intelligence personal advertisement leading article interview and foreign correspondence show how the Victorian novel is best understood alongside the simultaneous development of newspapers In highly original analyses of Victorian fiction this study also captures the surprising ways in which public media enabled the expression of private feeling among ordinary readers from the trauma caused by a lover's reported suicide to the vicarious gratification felt during a celebrity interview from the distress at finding one's behavior the subject of unflattering editorial commentary to the apprehension of distant cultures through the foreign correspondence. Combining a wealth of historical research with a series of astute close readings, The Novelty of Newspapers breaks down the assumed divide between the epoch's literature and journalism and demonstrates that newsprint was integral to the development of the novel.
