When a force is applied to an object, it causes the object to accelerate. Acceleration is the change in velocity over time. Velocity is the speed and direction of an object's motion. Mass is the amount of matter in an object. The force of gravity acts on all objects near the Earth's surface. The force of air resistance acts on objects moving through the air. The force of friction acts on objects in contact with a surface. Newton's first law states that an object at rest stays at rest and an object in motion stays in motion with the same speed and in the same direction unless acted upon by an unbalanced force. Newton's second law states that the acceleration of an object is directly proportional to the net force acting on it and inversely proportional to its mass. Newton's third law states that for every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction. Force is a push or pull that can cause an object to accelerate. The force of gravity acts on all objects near the Earth's surface. The force of air resistance acts on objects moving through the air.
