- 1 Depressed mood most of the day, nearly every day, as indicated by either subjective report (eg, feels sad, empty, hopeless) or observation made by others (eg, appears tearful)
- 2 Markedly diminished interest or pleasure in all, or almost all, activities most of the day, nearly every day (as indicated by either subjective account or observation)

- 6 Fatigue or loss of energy nearly every day
- 7 Feelings of worthlessness or excessive or inappropriate guilt (which may be delusional) nearly every day (not merely self-reproach or guilt about being sick)
- 8 Diminished ability to think or concentrate, or indecisiveness, nearly every day (either by subjective account or as observed by others)
- 9 Recurrent thoughts of death (not just fear of dying), recurrent suicidal ideation without a specific plan, or a suicide attempt or a specific plan for committing suicide

The symptoms do not meet criteria for a mixed episode.

C

The episode is not attributable to the physiological effects of a substance or to another medical condition.

Adapted from the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and statistical manual of mental disorders (5th ed).

ICD-11: Depressive Disorder

Depressive disorder may be either single episode or recurrent:

- Single episode depressive disorder is characterized by the presence or history of one depressive episode when there is no history of previous depressive episodes.
- Recurrent depressive disorder is characterized by a history of at least two episodes separated by at least several months.

- A depressive episode is characterized by:
- Almost daily depressed mood or diminished interest in activities lasting at least two weeks
 - Other accompanying symptoms such as
 - difficulty concentrating
 - feelings of worthlessness or excessive or inappropriate guilt

- hopelessness, recurrent thoughts of death or suicide
- changes in appetite or sleep
- psychomotor agitation or retardation
- and reduced energy or fatigue
- No previous manic, hypomanic, or mixed episodes, which would indicate the presence of a bipolar disorder

Depressive disorder, whether single episode or recurrent, may be graded as:

Mild: none of the symptoms are present to an intense degree; an individual typically has some, but not considerable, difficulty in continuing with ordinary work, social, or domestic activities and there are no delusions or hallucinations

Moderate: several symptoms of a depressive episode are present to a marked degree, or a large number of depressive symptoms of lesser severity are present overall; an individual typically has considerable difficulty in continuing with work, social, or domestic activities, but is still able to function in at least some areas

Severe: many or most symptoms of a depressive episode are present to a marked degree, or a smaller number of symptoms are present and manifest to an intense degree; an individual is unable to function in personal, family, social, educational, occupational, or other important domains, except to a very limited degree

Moderate and severe: episodes may be further qualified by the presence or absence of psychotic symptoms (delusions or hallucinations).
