America's Children, 2009      America's Children Eleanor Harriet Bernert Sheldon, 1958      America's Children Maxwell Slutz Stewart, 1942      America's Children Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Studies (U.S.), 2017-10-19 This report is a compendium of indicators about our Nation's young people. The report the 20th produced by the Forum presents 41 key indicators on important aspects of children's lives. These indicators are drawn from our most reliable Federal statistics, are easily understood by broad audiences, are objectively based on substantial research, are balanced so that no single area of children's lives dominates the report, are measured often to show trends over time, and are representative of large segments of the population rather than one particular group. America's Children, 2009      America's Children Suzanne M. Bianchi, 1990      America's Story for America's Children Mara Louise Pratt-Chadwick, 1900      Americas Children in Brief Federal Interagency Forum, 2015-01-14 Each year since 1997 the Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics has published a report on the well being of children and families. Pending data availability the Forum updates all 40 indicators annually on its Web site <http://childstats.gov> and alternates publishing a detailed report America's Children: Key National Indicators of Well-Being with a summary version that highlights selected indicators. The America's Children series makes Federal data on children and families available in a nontechnical, easy-to-use format in order to stimulate discussion among data providers, policymakers, and the public. The Forum fosters coordination and integration among 22 Federal agencies that produce or use statistical data on children and families and seeks to improve Federal data on children and families. The America's Children series provides accessible compendiums of indicators drawn across topics from the most reliable official statistics; it is designed to complement other more specialized technical or comprehensive reports produced by various Forum agencies. The indicators and demographic background measures presented in America's Children in Brief all have been presented in previous Forum reports. Indicators are chosen because they are easy to understand, are based on substantial research connecting them to child well-being, cut across important areas of children's lives, are measured regularly so that they can be updated and show trends over time, and represent large segments of the population rather than one particular group.      America's Children: Key National Indicators of Well-Being (2011) Traci Cook, 2011-07-21 The Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics develops priorities for collecting data on children and youth, improve the reporting and dissemination of information on the status of children to the policy community and the general public, and produce more complete data on children at the State and local levels. This report presents key indicators grouped in seven sections: family and social environment, economic circumstances, health care, physical environment, and safety behavior, education, and health. In addition, this year's report includes a new indicator on teen immunizations that will allow the tracking of newly recommended adolescent vaccines. Extensive charts, tables, and graphs. A print-on-demand report.      Before Head Start Hamilton Cravens, 2000-11-09 Between the 1920s and the 1950s the child welfare movement that had originated as a moral reform effort in the Progressive era evolved into the science of child development In Before Head Start Hamilton Cravens chronicles this transformation both on the national level and from the perspective of the field s best known research center the University of Iowa s Child Welfare Research Station Addressing the changing role played by women and the importance of Rockefeller philanthropy he shows how a women s reform movement became a male dominated conservative profession and demonstrates how lay pressure groups can influence the structures and processes of science Animated by the reformist goals of the child welfare movement scientists at the Iowa Station challenged the pervasive idea that an individual s development was determined by such group traits as race class and gender Instead their research suggested that early social intervention could rescue a child from a grim future Cravens argues that this individualistic perspective rejected in the 1940s by a scientific community that mirrored society s deterministic notions anticipated the national social reforms of the post 1950s era including Head Start America's Children in Brief Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics,2008 Each year since 1997 the Federal Interagency Forum on Child and Family Statistics has published a report on the well being of children and families This Brief highlights selected indicators from the more detailed report which were chosen because they are easy to understand are based on substantial research connecting them to child well being vary across important areas of children s lives are measured regularly so that they can be updated and show trends over time and represent large segments of the population rather than one particular group The indicators are organized into seven sections each focusing on a domain relevant to children s lives Family and Social Environment Economic Circumstances Health Care Physical Environment and Safety Behavior Education and Health Contains 15 figures and 42 footnotes This report was printed by the U S Government Printing Office in cooperation with the National Center for Health Statistics For America s Children Key National Indicators of Well Being 2007 see ED499561
