

SCHOOL LIBRARY COLLECTION DEVELOPMENT FRAMEWORK

Collection development for any type of library is an ongoing process of improvement. School libraries led by certified professionals collect and curate resources used to meet the learning and teaching needs of their school community. Resources include, but are not limited to, print and digital formats as well as devices, artifacts, and tools. These resources guide and support the mission of the South Dakota Department of Education.

Although each school, district, and system is unique and must reflect the mission and goals of the local community, school library improvement operates most efficiently with a plan, policies that further that plan, and procedures that implement those policies. This framework is an outline of best practices for districts to use and adapt to their local needs. It is intended as a guide to be built upon and revised as required by the changing needs of the future-ready school community it serves. The components of this framework include three distinct documents/templates designed to provide direction for the library in all areas of operation. Combination school/public libraries also require a Joint-Use Agreement.

The following information shares definitions for the key features of the plan, policies, and procedures. Each definition is followed with an essential question. These questions are not all inclusive. As the school library considers their needs other questions may arise.

Collection Development in the Digital Age Dominika Dechiel, 2016-04 The term collection development refers to the process of systematically building library collections to serve study teaching research recreational and other needs of library users The process includes selection and deselection of current and retrospective materials the planning of strategies for continuing acquisition and evaluation of collections to determine how well they serve user needs Overall collection development encompasses many library operations ranging from the selection of individual titles for purchase to the withdrawal of expendable materials An impressive number of publications on collection development have been produced within the last twenty years The collection development policy is intended to provide guidance within budgetary and space limitations for the selection and evaluation of materials which anticipate and meet the needs of the Pasadena community It directly relates the collection to the library's mission statement and defines the scope and standards of the various collections As the community changes the library will need to reassess and adapt its collections to reflect new and differing areas of interest and concern The collection development policy will be periodically evaluated and revised as necessary to provide guidance for implementing changes in the collection Before entering into a discussion of the policy framework it is important to recognize the issues currently affecting the collection development planning process The special library is usually created for the specific purpose of providing accurate and current information for a particular set of patrons and therefore must contain materials considered to be of quality and be able to access them in sometimes demanding circumstances Inaccurate information in a special library may cause destruction for the supporting institution The second issue involves concern over the information explosion The amount of research and number of researchers is increasing and the amount of published material is increasing thereby challenging libraries in their desire to provide access to this increased wealth of information Meanwhile libraries have also been trying to contend with the rising cost of the materials in conjunction with the decreasing space in their physical facilities Additionally the impact of technology has created problems in accessing information This book entitled Collection Development in the Digital Age explores evolving roles and ideas in collection development in the digital age
