Avoid Being a Mammoth Hunter! John Malam, Karen Barker Smith, 2004      Evolutionary Psychology in the Business Sciences Gad Saad, 2011-07-09 All individuals who operate in the business sphere whether as consumers employers employees entrepreneurs or financial traders to name a few constituents share a common biological heritage and are defined by a universal human nature As such it is surprising that so few business scholars have incorporated biological and evolutionary informed theories within their conceptual toolboxes This edited book addresses this lacuna by culling chapters at the intersection of the evolutionary behavioral sciences and specific business contexts including in marketing consumer behavior advertising innovation and creativity intertemporal choice negotiations competition and cooperation in organizational settings sex differences in workplace patterns executive leadership business ethics store design behavioral decision making and electronic communication To reword the famous aphorism of T G Dobzhansky nothing in business makes sense except in the light of evolution      Time, Process and Structured Transformation in Archaeology James McGlade, Sander E. van der Leeuw, 2013-10-16 In a discipline which essentially studies how modern man came to be it is remarkable that there are hardly any conceptual tools to describe change This is due to the history of the western intellectual and scientific tradition which for a long time favoured mechanics over dynamics and the study of stability over that of change Change was primarily deemed due to external events in archaeology mainly climatic or environmental Revolutionary innovations in the natural and life sciences often erroneously referred to as chaos theory suggest that there are ways to overcome this problem A wide range of processes can be described in terms of dynamic systems and modern computing methods enable us to investigate many of their properties This volume presents a cogent argument for the use of such approaches and a discussion of a number of its aspects by a range of scientists from the humanities social and natural sciences and archaeology      You Wouldn't Want to Be a Mammoth Hunter! John Malam, David Antram, David Salariya, Karen Barker Smith, 2004 Illustrations and text describe the hard life of mammoth hunters in the ice age including many of the tools and implements they used      The School Librarian, 2005      America's Ancient Forests Thomas M. Bonnicksen, 2000-02-07 At the time of European discovery the ancient North American forests stretched across nearly half the continent And while today little remains of this past glory efforts are underway to bring back some of the diverse ecosystems of that era America's Ancient Forests From the Ice Age to the Age of Discovery provides scientists and professionals with essential information for forest restoration and conservation projects while presenting a compelling and far reaching account of how the North American landscape has evolved over the past 18 000 years The book weaves historical accounts and scientific knowledge into a dynamic narrative about the ancient forests and the events that shaped them Divided into two major parts it covers first the glaciers and forests of the Ice Age and the influences of native peoples and then provides an in depth look at these majestic forests through the eyes of the first European explorers Changes in climate and elevation the movement of trees northward the assembly of modern forests and qualities that all ancient forests shared are also thoroughly examined A special feature of this book is its self contained introduction to the early history of Native American peoples and their environment The author draws on his roots in the Osage nation as well as painstaking research through the historical record offering a complete discussion of how the cultural practices of hunting agriculture and fire helped form the ancient forests
