

Modernism (1914-1945)

- ▶ 'Stream of consciousness', concept developed by psychologist William James: the thoughts, memories and feelings that exist in our mind in what he called the Pre-Speech level. Not censored, rationally controlled or logically ordered; formed by free association.
- ▶ Modernist writers tried to show the hidden aspects of a character's personality through the representation of this level of consciousness. Different techniques:
 - Description: the narrator describes with his/her own language the hidden thoughts of a character.
 - Interior Monologue: reproduction of these thoughts in the character's own language.
 - Soliloquy: Its purpose is not only to communicate psychic identity (like the interior monologue), but also to advance the plot. It communicates ideas and emotions which are related to plot and action.
