

Confederate Veteran.

AN EASY AND EFFECTIVE WAY TO GIVE PLEASURE TO THE VETERANS AND THEIR FAMILIES.

Books of history and reminiscence have come in strong degree through our decade or another to the men who survived the tragic and perilous events of the war. Many of them have made millions, while others, who were heroes in battle and had prolonged lives that war period, have never recovered from their losses, and have lived in obscurity, sometimes unable to provide the comforts, even the luxuries, of life, yet maintaining their honor unscathed. Many of these even silent veterans rarely attend meetings. Many do not enjoy the Marston printed in their interest—they do not know of it. Are there any such in your vicinity? Are there others who were poor always, but true, noble private soldiers whose lives have ever been obscured? Think about these things, and do them on their behalf; the Marston is sent addressed, that copies of the Veteran may be sent them. Usually my thought that it will be sent to them complimentary. If you will do this, recipients in thousands of homes will be sustained; new generations will imbibe the spirit of the contributors, and will be quickened into enduring patriotism. There are no great patriots than those who suffered for the Confederacy. Send such names, tell the parties, and many thousand copies will be sent to those who can't pay. If this liberal proposition is acted upon. Do let us be up and doing while it is day; the time will soon come when Confederates cannot work. Let us show our faith by our works.

Illustration by Thomas S. Smith, printed by the publishers of the Confederate Veteran, at the Nashville, Tenn. office, 1906.

Crafted by an outstanding composer of language, that interesting masterpiece conducts readers on a psychological trip, skillfully unraveling the hidden melodies and profound impact resonating within each cautiously constructed phrase.
