Control of Machines with Friction Brian

Armstrong-Hélouvry, 1991-01-31 It is my ambition in writing this book to bring tribology to the study of control of machines with friction Tribology from the greek for study of rubbing is the discipline that concerns itself with friction wear and lubrication Tribology spans a great range of disciplines from surface physics to lubrication chemistry and engineering and comprises investigators in diverse specialities The English language tribology literature now grows at a rate of some 700 articles per year But for all of this activity in the three years that I have been concerned with the control of machines with friction I have but once met a fellow controls engineer who was aware that the field existed this including many who were concerned with friction In this vein I must confess that before undertaking these investigations I too was unaware that an active discipline of friction existed The experience stands out as a mark of the specialization of our time Within tribology experimental and theoretical understanding of friction in lubricated machines is well developed The controls engineer's interest is in dynamics which is not the central interest of the tribologist The tribologist is more often concerned with wear with respect to which there has been enormous progress witness the many mechanisms which we buy today that are lubricated once only and that at the factory Though a secondary interest frictional dynamics are note forgotten by tribology
