Belonging Always:

You Always Belonged and You Always Will Martin Clay Fowler, 2014-07-11 You belong You always did and you always will You belong is my benediction to you not some claim about you Belonging is the first gift of the living to the living You ask Belong to whom Belong with what Belong here Belong now On what terms At the same time you feel rightly that the benediction is a real gift which you needed even if you never asked for it Working out the terms of belonging is the most human work we do together Belonging is a basic human need and at the heart of global issues in the 21st century refugees immigration and humanity's relationship with nature But philosophers mostly ignore belonging and some find it elusive to define or to put into perspective Why does it matter to belong Who can be sure of belonging You may feel that you belong nowhere My two words which are now yours mean that your belonging was never nowhere Your belonging is not problematic and not probationary It's neither inclusion nor attachment It's no comfort zone familiar setting a piece of turf or your peace of mind It's your vulnerability to transformation This vulnerable belonging is not precarious but living as though you and others don't belong is extremely insecure Transformation is more than change not always momentous discontinuous or miraculous irreversibly living in a right direction without seeing our destination You Always Belonged and You Always Will a Philosophy of Belonging argues that we only tell life's first story strivings to transform internal and external environments Life then looks busy busy busy Let's tell life's second story too Life sustains itself but it also enables life to belong Belonging is no relationship between distinct lives nor interaction connection among lives I propose that each life belongs in every life and every life belongs in each life This inter-situated reality helps evolution ecosystems and communities to function Life's borders like skin and turf don't limit a life's scope and meaning Lives have insides and outsides but that's packaging not the gift Sound strange Is this stranger than believing you can belong only inside your skin or on some patch of ground Is this stranger than picturing belonging as ever fainter concentric ripples extending from you Relationships provide the adhesive between lives but it's belonging which places lives smack within lives We experience belonging not as inner glow nor by invitation but by exercising capacities you probably associate only with physical fitness power speed strength flexibility accuracy agility balance coordination stamina and endurance These capacities are more than muscular skills They are how we engage the world to belong We experience life's core values courage justice truth peace and love as we exercise and combine these capacities We mix striving and belonging in activity to get a kinesthetic feel for these values in our lives if we haven't already given up on living with meaningful activity Our society's numbing expanse of inactivity makes belonging and meaningful activity seem larger than life But they are both exactly life-sized and you're a perfect fit Belonging is not probationary problematic scarce nor restricted to the lucky and few We say that extremophiles belong only in inhospitable circumstances Inhospitable to whom Flip this around and declare every life an extremophile It would be stranger to find a life that belongs nowhere Humans anchor their belonging in being unique rational in control most favored by God or having intrinsic value but belonging is enough authority to live whether you re Isaac Newton or a spotted newt No one makes you belong You can t make yourself belong why did no one explain this when you were thirteen As striving makes your life possible belonging helps to make your life matter There s a reason that the lock seems to fit your key Welcome home

Muslim and Catholic Experiences of National Belonging in France Carol A. Ferrara,2024-09-05 How do experiences of national identity and belonging differ for French Muslims and Catholics respectively What can these differences tell us about the causes and dynamics of minority marginalization in plural secular societies To address these questions Carol Ferrara draws upon extensive ethnographic fieldwork across France within spaces of religious education and interfaith dialogue illustrating the inequities between Muslim and Catholic citizens in opportunities for national belonging political and civic engagement and institution building This reexamination of Muslim exclusion against the backdrop of Catholic inclusion calls into question popular explanations for minority marginalization especially those that blame non adherence to French Republican principles or the exclusionary power of secular discourse Instead Ferrara argues that the boundaries of French belonging are policed by francit a tacit national imaginary ideal type that draws upon and reproduces national cognitive biases and undermines the French republican values of secularism equality liberty and fraternity Given the central role of francit in the politics of belonging Ferrara suggests that paths toward greater pluralism in France and beyond lie in the reframing of national identity narratives and reimagining the inclusive potential of secular democratic values
