Anna Kavan Victoria Walker,2023-04-17 This first book length study of Anna Kavan s writing contradicts earlier critical approaches that have figured her writing as sui generis by reading her comparatively alongside her contemporaries especially Jean Rhys Elizabeth Bowen Muriel Spark and Doris Lessing Taking Kavan s fiction as pivotal to understanding trends of experimentalism that emerged across the middle of the twentieth century it offers close readings of her distinctive prose including her early Helen Ferguson texts her writing of asylum incarceration her wartime stories and her postwar novels Observing how her fiction challenges perceived divisions between experimental and realist writing literary and popular genre and late modernist and postwar literatures it focuses on the ways that Kavan s writing undermines fixed or knowable identity and explores the relationship between reality and fiction This study not only brings necessary attention to a neglected writer but also suggests new taxonomies for reading experimental fiction in the mid twentieth century
