Analyzing Faculty Workload:

Analyzing Faculty Workload Jon F. Wergin, 1994-12-07 The question being asked with increasing regularity is Just what do faculty members do Studies of faculty workload have been commissioned in state after state Taken together the studies indicate that college faculty members are working harder than ever but are probably teaching less and are almost certainly having less contact with students particularly undergraduates This volume of New Directions for Institutional Research explores how the public discourse about faculty work might be improved and suggests how colleges and universities might document that work in a fashion that not only more faithfully describes what faculty do but also allows for reports that are more comprehensive and useful This is the 83rd issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Institutional Research For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals page

An Analysis of Faculty Workload and the Nature of Faculty Work Assignments in Small Public and Private Institutions of Higher Education Ann C. McPherrin, 1992 Analyzing Faculty Work and Rewards: Using Boyer's Four Domains of Scholarship John M. Braxton, 2006-05-19 All those involved in evaluating faculty work and the concomitant faculty rewards system will find this a useful volume Known for their thoughtful scholarship on this topic the chapter authors bring their diverse perspectives to bear on Boyer's four domains the scholarship of discovery the scholarship of application the scholarship of integration and the scholarship of teaching Individual scholars engage in each of these scholarships as their professional roles career stages and research goals change over time Understanding the unique characteristics of the four domains as well as how work in one domain connects with and influences work in another will give readers a map of the broad territory of scholarly activity and recognizes the legitimacy of each different intellectual contribution

Analysis of the University of Maryland System Faculty Workload Report University of Maryland (System), 1993

Faculty Workload Harold E. Yuker, 1984 Kinds of faculty workload data that can be obtained from college and faculty reports are examined along with potential problems in workload studies A main research concern is deciding which faculty activities should be considered as workload Types of data that are sometimes used in colleges faculty workload formulas concern student credit hours faculty contract hours and student faculty ratios However these measures ignore noninstructional time and they assume that the same amount of time is involved in teaching all three credit courses regardless of discipline and course level Faculty reports on their activities are another information source using interviews diaries or work samples Possible research problems include a biased sample the time of survey administration the time period covered time allocation and study reliability and validity Factors that can affect workload data include demographic factors discipline country institution scheduling factors class size course level course type preparations and individual factors rank gender and individual differences Ten recommendations are offered concerning such issues as the sponsorship of the study study methods the effect of teaching load on scholarship and the relationship between teaching load and teaching effectiveness SW The Handbook of Institutional Research Richard D. Howard, Gerald W. McLaughlin, William E. Knight, 2012-06-28 Institutional research is more relevant today than ever before as growing pressures for improved student learning and increased institutional accountability motivate higher education to effectively use ever expanding data and information resources As the most current and comprehensive volume on the topic the Handbook describes the fundamental knowledge techniques and strategies that define institutional research The book contains an overview of the profession and its history examines how institutional research supports executive and academic leadership and governance and discusses the varied ways data from federal state and campus sources are used by research professionals With contributions from leading experts in the field this important resource reviews the analytic tools techniques and methodologies used by institutional researchers in their professional practice and covers a wide range of topics such as conducting institutional research statistical applications comparative analyses quality control systems measuring student faculty and staff opinions and management activities designed to improve organizational effectiveness An Analysis of Selected Criteria to be Applied to a Faculty Workload Formula for the Departments of Men's and Women's Physical Education at Washington State University Leslie Lee Hogan, 1974 Thesaurus of ERIC Descriptors, 1995 4th 7th eds contain a special chapter on The role and function of the thesaurus in education by Frederick Goodman Resources in Education, 2001-04 Faculty Classroom Workload Analysis Ernest M.
