Wind is used to produce electricity using the kinetic energy created by air in motion. This is transformed into electrical energy using wind turbines. ## HYDRO ENERGY

By building a dam or barrier, a large reservoir can be used to create a controlled flow of water that will drive a turbine, generating electricity. This energy source can often be more reliable than solar or wind power and also allows electricity to be stored for use when demand reaches a peak.

TIDAL ENERGY

This is another form of hydro energy that uses twice-daily tidal currents to drive turbine generators. Tidal energy is harnessed by converting energy from tides into useful forms of power, mainly electricity using various methods. Although not yet widely used, tidal energy has the potential for future electricity generation. Tides are more predictable than the wind and the sun.
