Hornstein, 1976 Draws on evidence provided by psychological research to demonstrate that both aggression and altruism are dependent on social conditions and equally integral to human nature

Origins of Altruism and Cooperation Robert W. Sussman,C. Robert Cloninger,2011-08-02 This book is about the evolution and nature of cooperation and altruism in social living animals focusing especially on non human primates and on humans Although cooperation and altruism are often thought of as ways to attenuate competition and aggression within groups or are related to the action of selfish genes there is increasing evidence that these behaviors are the result of biological mechanisms that have developed through natural selection in group living species This evidence leads to the conclusion that cooperative and altruistic behavior are not just by products of competition but are rather the glue that underlies the ability for primates and humans to live in groups The anthropological primatological paleontological behavioral neurobiological and psychological evidence provided in this book gives a more optimistic view of human nature than the more popular conventional view of humans being naturally and basically aggressive and warlike. Although competition and aggression are recognized as an important part of the non human primate and human behavioral repertoire the evidence from these fields indicates that cooperation and altruism may represent the more typical normal and healthy behavioral pattern. The book is intended both for the general reader and also for students at a variety of levels graduate and undergraduate it aims to provide a compact accessible and up to date account of the current scholarly advances and debates in this field of study and it is designed to be used in teaching and in discussion groups. The book derived from a conference sponsored by N S F the Wenner Gren Foundation for Anthropological Research the Washington University Committee for Ethics and Human Values and the Anthropedia Foundation for the study of well being.

Civilization's Crisis: A Set Of Linked Challenges John Scales Avery, 2017-04-20. Modern civilization faces a broad spectrum of daunting problems but rational solutions are available for them all. This book explores the following issues: 1 Threats to the environment and climate change 2 a growing population and vanishing resources 3 the global food and refugee crisis 4 intolerable economic inequality 5 the threat of nuclear war 6 the military industrial complex and 7 limits to growth. These problems are closely interlinked and their possible solutions are discussed in this book.

Social Development as Preference Management Rachel Karniol, 2010-04-12. Karniol engagingly presents social development in children through the language of preference management. Conversational excerpts garnered from around the world trace how parents talk about preferences how infants and children's emergent language conveys their preferences how children themselves are impacted by others preferences and how they in turn influence the preferences of adults and peers. The language of preferences is used to crack into altruism aggression and morality which are ways of coming to terms with other people's preferences. Behind the scenes is a cognitive engine that uses transformational thought conducting temporal imaginal and mental transformations to figure out other people's preferences and to find more sophisticated means of outmanoeuvring others by persuading them and playing with one's own mind and other people's minds when preferences are blocked. This book is a unique and sometimes amusing must read for anyone interested in child development language acquisition socialisation and communication.

Discovering Psychology Don Hockenbury, Sandra E. Hockenbury, 2016-03-02. Sandra Hockenbury and new coauthor

Susan Nolan's remarkable textbook is grounded in the belief that all kinds of students can develop a real understanding of psychology and lasting scientific literacy. The authors act on that belief by using relatable personal stories to communicate the concepts of psychological science and the process of science itself and by presenting important research in a clear, not oversimplified way. Hockenbury and Nolan also take full advantage of online learning, creating activities in LaunchPad that have students thinking about psychology as scientists do.

New co-author Susan Nolan of Seton Hall University was recently designated a Master Teacher by the Society for Teaching Psychology. She regularly gives talks about incorporating scientific literacy into the introductory course and across the psychology curriculum.

Drawing from hundreds of studies in half a dozen fields, The Brighter Side of Human Nature makes a powerful case that caring and generosity are just as natural as selfishness and aggression. This lively refutation of cynical assumptions about our species considers the nature of empathy and the causes of war, why we incorrectly explain all behavior in terms of self-interest, and how we can teach children to care.
